President Warns VFW U. S. Purse Has Limits

Veterans' Group Told Not to Forget Nation's Finances Can Be Strained

President Truman told a group of veterans yesterday there is a limit beyond which the financial structure of the Nation they defended in battle "cannot be stretched."

He made an impromptu talk to officials of the Veterans of Foreign Wars who called at his office, the second time in 24 hours he had communicated with them.

"I want you to bear that in mind very carefully when you are considering the welfare of the veteran," he said of his remark on the Nation's economy.

He mentioned no money matters specifically, but his language was more direct than that used the night before in a message read by his military aide, in which he also referred to economic stability and veterans' affairs.

Believed Slap at Rankin Bill

His guarded remarks were felt by some to have been directed at the Rankin pension bill to pay $90 a month to veterans of both World Wars when they become 65 years old.

The VFW is supporting a less costly bill, in which needy and disabled veterans would get Federal pensions. The Rankin measure, which some have predicted will be vetoed by the President, would eventually cost an estimated seven billion dollars a year.

A veteran and member of the VFW since 1919 himself, the President yesterday exhorted his colleagues to "continue your constructive program."

"I hope it will be possible for you to help me to help the veterans of the country understand that this United States is theirs. They fought to maintain it."

VFW Commander in Chief Lyall T. Beggs left on the President's desk a resolution saying his now-famous inaugural address "point four" can be realized if Congress enacts what he called a "little man's RFC" bill.

Beggs said the VFW unanimously indorses the President's plan to use scientific and technical skill in building up underdeveloped areas. And he said the Veterans Economic Development Corporation bill would accomplish much of the purpose.

It would "promote maximum employment, create thousands of business opportunities and provide careers in a free competitive society both at home and abroad," Beggs said.

The closing hours of the VFW's fiftieth anniversary meeting of national and State officers saw Chairman John Rankin (D., Miss.) of the House Veterans' Affairs Commitee promise immediate steps to get his pension bill before the House.

He told the VFW, which vigorously opposed his plan the first day of its meeting, that he intends to push the measure to final passage as soon as he can get a rule from the House Rules Committee to place the bill before the House.

Representative B. W. Kearney (R., N. Y.) said in a talk before the group he would offer an amendment to the Rankin bill to limit payment of pensions to veterans with honorable discharges.

Senator Millard Tydings (D., Md.) urged the group to take care not to undermine the civilian economy by too heavy charges. He said veterans' affairs, the national debt and the Marshall Plan take 78 cents of the tax dollar even now.

Scandinavian Ministers Confer on Defense

Oslo, Norway, Feb. 18 (UP).—The Foreign Ministers of Norway, Sweden and Denmark conferred today on Scandinavian defense problems. Norwegian Premier Einar Gerhardsen joined the talk.

It was understood that the main topic was the visit which Norwegian foreign minister Halvard M. Lange paid to Washington to discuss the Atlantic Pact.

Jets Give Washington Idea Of Nation's Future Air Might

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

With a roar and four whooshes, five of the Air Force's latest and fastest futuristic flying machines streaked around the Washington area yesterday.

The roar which signalled the approach of the tiny but potent air armada came from the lead-off B-36, the six-engine 10,000-mile bomber familiar to Inaugural Parade spectators.

In rapid succession behind the B-36 came four jet machines, thundering with the peculiar whine of their kind.

There were three jet bombers—the comparatively small but powerful B-45, the arrow-like and speedy B-47, the weird and batlike B-49 Flying Wing—and the F-86 jet fighter, streaking through the sky at well over 600 miles an hour.

It was the Air Force's finale to last Tuesday's congressional air show at Andrews Air Force Base. Showing off to the residents of the Washington area, the aluminum monsters stayed at between 1500 and 2000 feet in their flashing visit through the cloudless atmosphere.

As the Air Force's latest disappeared over the horizon toward their home bases, Sen. Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) singled out the B-47 as a plane that could carry a 10,000 pound bomb load from Maine to Moscow in five hours.

He later qualified the statement by saying such performance was possible "if this bomber had a 10,000-mile range."

The Flying Wing, right out of the pages of science fiction, drew the greatest attention as lunchtime spectators yesterday craned their necks to watch the short but dazzling air show.

One by one, the machines whizzed over the Capitol from Andrews Base, around the White House and the Pentagon, and up 16th st. nw.

More than 1000 military and civilian workers at the Pentagon streamed outside to watch the sample of the Air Force's present and future might, and thousands shopping in the downtown area jerked their necks around to gaze aloft at the spectacle.

Windows and roofs of many Federal buildings and nearby Government installations were other vantage points. On the Mall, a few forehanded amateur photographers set up their equipment to await their 12:30 p. m. date with the flying quintet.

One result of the brief air show was the desire of many residents of the Washington area to see the new machines — particularly the Flying Wing — at close range, as evidenced by inquiries as to whether they were going to be displayed here.

The B-36 was on its way back to Carswell Air Force Base at Fort Worth, Tex., while the B-45 was flying to Eglin Air Force Base in Valparaiso, Fla. The other three were winging back to the Air Force's experimental field at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio.

NAM Leader Calls Pepper 'Abusive'

Senator Criticizes Industrialists' War Record as Mosher Defends Labor Law

By The Associated Press

In a table-thumping session yesterday a leader of the National Association of Manufacturers defended the Taft-Hartley Act and Democratic Senators replied with an angry attack on the NAM.

Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) called the organization an "enemy of democracy." He said it is "the spearhead and symbol of reactionary business forces in this country which can't see beyond the end of their noses."

Ira Mosher, a director and former president of NAM, was testifying before the Senate Labor Committee in a crowded little room at the Capitol.

At one point Pepper shouted:

"It was the workers' sons who died on the battlefields while the sons of manufacturers stayed home and got rich!"

Two Back Pepper

Mosher leaned forward and snapped: "Just a minute. I'm losing my temper."

Pepper said: "Well, lose it."

Mosher said: "I lost three in my family during the war."

That didn't stop Pepper's rush of words.

Senators Murray (D., Mont.) and Humphrey (D., Minn.) joined Pepper in saying the NAM has never supported any "liberal legislation." Pepper complained that management is making the biggest profits in history, yet is "coming down here and making a crusade against labor."

Mosher said he is willing to stand on NAM's record concerning legislation. Then he added:

"But when you talk about management not contributing their share in the war, I think that is just pure abuse of the witness, and I resent it very much."

Point by point, Mosher defended the Taft-Hartley law which the Administration wishes to repeal. In addition, he argued for Federal regulation of industry-wide bargaining, which he blamed for "national emergency" strikes in vital industries.

Would Broaden Power

If Congress doesn't favor such regulation, Mosher suggested broadening the Government's current power (granted by the Taft-Hartley Act) to delay critical strikes by injunctions "so long as the public health and safety may require."

The Thomas bill, which is before the Senate committee, would remove this injunction provision.

The Thomas bill was prepared by the Truman Administration, introduced by Committee Chairman Elbert Thomas (D., Utah), and indorsed by most unions. It would repeal the Taft-Hartley law and replace it with the original Wagner Act of 1935, with certain additions proposed by President Truman.

Two other associations of employers also asked Congress yesterday not to scrap the Taft-Hartley law.

Earlier the trucking industry asked that the Taft-Hartley law be kept as a means of protecting American cities against strikes of truck drivers.

Edgar S. Idol, general counsel of American Trucking Associations, told the committee that "our labor is organized to a point where the teamsters' union can, by a strike, close down motor transportation in any metropolitan area."

He said the present labor law "works."

Economy Safe Unless Nation Gets Jitters, Truman Adviser Holds

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

One of President Truman's top economic advisers coined a word yesterday to handle the hot potato of recent price declines and unemployment.

Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, chairman of the President's Economic Advisory Council, told reporters the United States was in a period of "healthy disinflation." It would not lead to a recession, he added, unless people get "jittery."

At the other end of Pennsylvania ave., representatives of business and farm organizations and labor unions agreed on the fact of economic uncertainty but disagreed on its causes, its direction and its cure. These experts took part in a round-table discussion of Mr. Truman's economic proposals before the Joint Economic Committee with Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) in the chair.

Dr. Nourse talked with reporters at the White House after a conference with the President. He said he agreed with Mr. Truman's optimism about current trends but couldn't accept his description of them as a leveling-off process.

"I'd prefer to stay away from that word 'leveling-off,'" he said. "It might give a lot of people the idea that prices are going to be fairly stable at the present level. Instead of a smooth situation like that, I think we can look for a choppy situation, with both ups and downs."

He preferred to use "disinflation" instead of "deflation," Dr.

Roll of Jobless Grows But Seasonal Slump Is Blamed

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The Nation's jobless roll, already at a record postwar high, is still rising, but there are strong indications, in the opinion of Federal employment statisticians and analysts, that the "recession" of 1948-49 is just about over.

The United States experts shun the word "recession," and refer to the drop in employment which began early in October as a "seasonal slump." By that the experts mean that every year the country suffers a drop in employment in the fall and enjoys a pick-up in the spring.

There was such a seasonal slump in 1946 and 1947 but the current slackening in jobs began earlier than usual and has cut more deeply into the payroll.

In the wake of '48—a year in which national employment rose higher than ever before—there are today approximately three million out of work.

There are 1,784,000 employes drawing unemployment compen-

Two Subcommittees In Joint Session Back Revenue Plan Of Commissioners

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

A 2 per cent sales tax and increased liquor taxes for Washington were approved yesterday by House and Senate subcommittees in charge of District revenue bills.

The two subcommittees, in a joint executive meeting, adopted in full the Commissioners' liquor tax program for producing $3,100,000 in additional revenue annually.

They unanimously backed the Commissioners in agreeing that there should be no increase now in property tax rates.

They approved in principle the 2 per cent general retail sales tax recommended by the Commissioners as the main plank in their tax program, then started to work out the details of what the sales tax bill will include. It is expected to raise 10 million dollars in the fiscal year starting July 1.

These actions were announced by Chairmen Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.) of the Senate Subcommittee and Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) of the House Subcommittee.

Hunt said the subcommittees started going through the sales tax bill page by page, approving the sections on which there was no disagreement, and putting aside those where questions arose for future action. The group will meet again Wednesday.

The chairman said other features of the Commissioners' revenue program had not yet been taken up. These include a requested jump in the Federal payment to the District from 12 to 16 million dollars a year, and revisions in the District income taxes.

The liquor tax program approved by the subcommittees is a three-point plan:

1. Liquor taxes would be hiked to produce 2 billion a year in increased revenue. The tax on spirits would be boosted from 50 cents to $1.10 per gallon, a 10 cents per gallon tax would be placed on still wine of 14 per cent alcohol or less, and other alcoholic beverage taxes would be doubled.

2. Doubling of liquor license fees would produce $800,000 in new revenue.

3. Increasing the tax on beer from 50 cents to $1 per barrel would bring in $300,000.

The Commissioners have told Congress that if their entire revenue program is adopted, the chances are it will not be necessary to have both the higher liquor tax program and the increased Federal payment in the fiscal year after next, and that one or the other could be made effective for only one year.

Hunt said the question of a time limit on the liquor tax increases was not discussed in the meeting. He pointed out the subcommittee action on liquor revenue represented approval of the Commissioners' program in general terms, rather than specific adoption of the bill to carry out that program as introduced by Representative Smith.

The bill would make the higher liquor taxes effective three months after the measure becomes law.

Argentina Quits Wheat Conference

Declares It Cannot Afford Surplus Grain Sale at $2 Maximum

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Argentina pulled out of the International Wheat Conference yesterday, declaring it could not afford to sell its surplus wheat for $2 a bushel.

Juan Scarpati, economic adviser at the Washington embassy, who has been Argentina's delegate, made the announcement at the morning session of the conference, and then confirmed it at a press conference last night.

Scarpati stated that the maximum price of $2 a bushel for wheat that is being asked by other exporting nations "is not enough to cover the price" his government is paying Argentina wheat producers. He added that it wasn't sufficient to meet the present high price of producing wheat, mentioning higher costs of machinery, transportation, etc.

Further, he said, the wheat agreement is being figured in dollars—a money that he said Argentina's traditional customers wouldn't use in buying from them.

J. C. Van Essche, acting chairman of the conference, announced that France and Uruguay had joined the United States, Canada, Australia and Soviet Russia as wheat exporters. Russia, he said will have a large quantity of wheat for sale, while Uruguay and France have offered smaller amounts. The entry of three new exporters into the contract negotiations, Van

Senators Hear Acheson for 3 Hours on Pact

By The Associated Press

An important huddle between Secretary of State Acheson and Senators failed yesterday to produce immediate agreement on the wording of a proposed North Atlantic defense pact to strengthen the West against communism.

But another meeting will be held soon to continue the hunt for acceptable language. The date for the second meeting has not been set. The thorniest problem is how far the United States shall go in promising aid to nations that might suffer aggression.

The meeting between Acheson and the Senate Foreign Relations Commitee lasted for three hours. Afterward Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) told newsmen:

"You can't even say any tentative agreement was reached."

But associates of Acheson reported last night that he was highly pleased with the progress made in the session with the Senators. Acheson's view was that the discussion bore out his statement at a news conference two days ago that there are no differences between the State Department and Congress on the objectives of the Atlantic project.

Pledged to Secrecy

While committee members were pledged to secrecy, there were strong hints that there is no disagreement a security pact is necessary. The only question seems to be the form it will take.

Connally announced "it will be some little time yet before it is ready to be made public."

"Several suggestions were made on a phrase here and a word there," he said.

Connally and Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) have said flatly they will not agree to a treaty that commits this country in advance to go to war in case any of the signatories is attacked.

Connally says his objection does not extend to measures short of war. But he argues that only Congress has the constitutional right to plunge the United States into armed conflict.

'Sally' Warned Not to Quit, German Says

Threatened on Trying To Leave Radio Job, Ex-Associate Testifies

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

A former associate of Miss Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars yesterday testified that the latter once told him she was threatened when she tried to quit her Nazi radio propaganda job.

The witness, Franz J. Schaefer, 39, stocky, blond former editor for the German Overseas radio system, shouted his testimony over the vehement objections of Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr., who had unwittingly led into it during cross examination.

"Did you ever discuss her citizenship with the defendant?" Kelley had asked.

"I asked her if she was an American citizen and she said 'yes, I think so,' the witness had replied.

The prosecutor then demanded "a sentence-by-sentence" account of the conversation.

"I said 'are you an American citizen?' and she said 'Yes, I think so.' I said, 'In view of the way the war is going why don't you try to get out?' and she said 'I tried to get out but they threatened me.'"

As Kelley's voice rose in objection, the witness determinedly carried his voice higher, proclaiming: "Her remarks impressed themselves on me because Cleinow (Horst Cleinow, former Nazi radio official) had threatened me previously."

Obviously nettled at this turn, Kelley shouted: "Just a moment Mr. Witness!" and then continued: "This witness is answering more than my question called for. It's a rehearsed speech!"

Defense Attorney James J. Laughlin and Kelley then engaged in heated colloquy brought to a close by a preemptory order from Judge Edward M. Curran.

Earlier Laughlin had failed in

AMA Ascribes Four Deaths To Lithium Salt Substitute

Chicago, Feb. 18 (AP).—The American Medical Association today blamed at least four recent deaths on a common table salt substitute. The Food and Drug Administration called on persons to "stop using this dangerous poison at once."

Three of the deaths occurred in Cleveland, Ohio, one in Ann Arbor, Mich., and "there is one case in Baltimore that's suspicious," the AMA said.

"It is to be expected that many more cases will be reported within the next few weeks," Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the AMA Journal, said. "We do not know how widely the product has been distributed but the United States Food and Drug Administration has ordered it withdrawn from the market."

In Washington, the food and drug administration asked all persons who have purchased lithium chloride to "stop using this dangerous poison at once."

The AMA described the substance as lithium chloride. Common table salt is sodium chloride. The principal marketer, the medical association said, is the Westwood Pharmacal Corporation of Buffalo, N. Y., which sold the substitute under the commercial name of "Westsal."

(Locally, the District Pharmaceutical Association said it had received notification from the producing company to withdraw the salt substitute from sale immediately and the District Medical Society said it was alerting all of its members. Before 11 last night radio Station WTOP had received approximately 100 telephone calls from anxious consumers.—Editor's Note.)

Dr. Fishbein said symptoms of the poisoning are similar to those of uremia.

Wrecked Plane, 3 Dead, Found In Pennsylvania

Wreckage of a training plane that left Bolling Air Base Tuesday for Pittsburgh was discovered yesterday on Laurel Mountain near Johnstown, Pa., ending a search that had extended over four States.

An Air Force rescue team that reached the wreckage, after struggling over 5 miles of forest-covered ridges, reported the three crewmen dead. The rescuers said the plane's gas tanks were empty.

Aboard the missing plane were Lieut. William K. Simmers, Bethlehem, Pa., and Lieut. Merle Hagenbuch, 30, and Staff Sergt. Norman Bogert, 32, both of Allentown, Pa.

The plane was last heard from at 4:51 p. m. Tuesday. The search extended from Youngstown, Ohio, to Cumberland, Md.

Berlin Panic Drives Down Soviet Mark

By Marguerite Higgins

Berlin, Feb. 18 (NYHT).—A currency panic struck Berlin today as a result of reports the Russians are planning a new currency reform in their occupation zone.

The Soviet-sponsored mark plunged steadily in value during the day and by this evening Germans at street corner exchanges were buying seven-and-a-half Russian-controlled marks for each West mark. The rate for many months had stayed at three East marks for one West mark.

Russian officials splashed big denials of any forthcoming currency exchange all over their newspapers. But no one was convinced.

The aim of the exchange, according to Die Welt, is to cut down the circulation of East zone notes because of the limited amount of consumer goods.

Jittery Soviet Police Wound 2 Berliners

Berlin, Feb. 18 (AP).—Gunfire crackled on Berlin's tense dividing line today as trigger-happy German police in the Soviet sector wounded two persons a few hours after they had shot and killed a drunken motorist. All of the victims were Germans.

The same Russian-controlled police force also engaged in sporadic fist fights with passengers on subway and elevated trains. The American-licensed newspaper Tagesspiegel denounced the shooting of the automobile driver as "murder."

All of the incidents grew out of the blockade-within-a-blockade which the Russians now are imposing on the western sectors of the city. The Soviet move is being bolstered by roadblocks built of paving stones and iron stanchions.

Today's scrape occurred when a vegetable dealer ignored a command to halt as he drove his truck toward the American sector.

The American-British airlift passed a landmark. The millionth ton of supplies carried since the lift started last June 26 arrived at Gatow Airport.

Czechs Block U. S. Attempt To Get 3 Free

Prague, Feb. 18 (AP).—American officials today disclosed they have been blocked thus far in attempts to win the release of two United States soldiers and a civilian held by Czechoslovak authorities.

Recruits George R. Jones of Owensboro, Ky., and Clarence Hill of Jackson, Miss., have been detained more than two months. The civilian, Roland Goodale of Houston, Tex., was arrested January 5. He is described as a student tourist.

A statement issued in Washington and Prague said the United States Government now is "considering what further steps" to take in the case of Jones and Hill. Formal protests already have been made to Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovak police arrested Goodale at Karlsbad on a charge of engaging in an illegal money transaction and have held him at the health resort.

American consular officials have not been allowed to talk with him.

Jones and Hill are members of the Sixth Armored Cavalry Regiment of the United States Constabulary.

They are believed to have been picked up in Pilsen after wandering across the German-Czechoslovak border the night of December 10.

Czechoslovak officials contended the soldiers went into Czechoslovakia on a "special mission." This was denied by the embassy.

Roman Reds' Strike Fizzles: Humiliation!

Rome, Feb. 18 (U.P.).—The Communists were humiliated in Rome today.

They called for a big general strike and a mass protest demonstration, but almost no one went on strike and only 4000 persons showed up for the rally. Only one jeepload of policemen appeared at the demonstration. No extra precautions were ordered. Business went on as usual.

The Communist bosses stood around and fidgeted for an hour and 15 minutes, waiting for the crowd to materialize, but it didn't. Finally, after a bare 4000 faithful party members had assembled, Giuseppe di Vittorio, the Communist labor chief said: "The general strike is finished."

Both the strike and the demonstration were ordered to protest the action of police against strikers at Isola del Liri, 60 miles south of Rome.

Acheson Calls Airlift A Lift for Europe

By the United Press

Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson said last night that success of the Berlin airlift has given encouragement to the democratic peoples of Europe "to resist the use of lawless force."

In a telegram to Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States commander in Germany, Acheson extended the Nation's "heartiest congratulations" to all who have taken part in flying one million tons of food and fuel to the Soviet-blockaded city.

"The success of the airlift has enabled the western powers to maintain their rights and discharge their obligations in Berlin as prescribed by solemn international agreement," he said. "It has given encouragement to the efforts of the democratic peoples of Europe to resist the use of lawless force."

Chapin Calls Rule of Reds 'Indescribable'

Paris, Feb. 18 (U.P.).—United States Minister Selden Chapin said today Hungary was dominated completely by Kremlinized Communists who had made life behind the Iron Curtain an ordeal that "defies description."

"No one today except the blind and the twisted can fail to see that the Hungarian people are under the complete, total domination of a group of Moscow-trained Communists whose sole allegiance is to the Kremlin," Chapin said.

"Unless a person has actually lived in Hungary or any of the Iron Curtain countries and learned from personal observation the facts of life, he or she cannot possibly conceive what life is like.

"I cannot tell you because the truth is beyond imagination and defies description."

Chapin is on the way home "for consultations" with the State Department on the arrest and conviction of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty.

Chapin said he had heard this morning from Budapest that his statements last night "had a good and heartening effect on the Hungarian people."

Last night he said the Mindszenty trial was a "travesty of justice" committed in a land where life was "no bed of roses." He said the two American correspondents who covered the trial "have my complete confidence and reported it factually."

Asked if press dispatches had been censored in Budapest, he said they had "not been in a physical sense, but through a fear of retribution."

Papal Courier Under Arrest, Budapest Says

Budapest, Hungary, Feb. 18 (U.P.).—A Vatican courier sent into Hungary after the arrest and before the trial of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty is being held "under detention" by police, authoritative sources here said today.

The courier, a Hungarian identified only as Moczi, was picked up by police as he was contacting Hungarian Roman Catholic bishops with a letter from Pope Pius XII, the sources said. The letter reportedly urged the bishops to resist any agreement with the state.

Social Reconstruction Key To Red's Defeat, Douglas Says

Los Angeles, Feb. 18 (AP).—The real victory over communism will be won in the factories and rice fields of the world rather than on the battlefields, Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas said tonight.

"If we want the hundreds of millions of peoples of the world in the democratic ranks, we must show them the way with practical programs of social reconstruction as are embodied in the European Recovery Program," Justice Douglas declared in a speech prepared for delivery at a dinner sponsored here by Occidental College.

The United States must meet communism on the foreign front with a constructive liberal program that eliminates conditions on which Stalinists thrive, he said.

"Our greatest error would be to fashion our foreign policy merely in terms of anticommunism . . . It must strengthen the democratic forces in other nations and not entrench reactionary interests that thirst for power, Justice Douglas added.

"This course requires the backing of a strong, alert and mobile military machine. For weaklings have never yet won a campaign—political or otherwise—against dictators."

The course for combating communism in this country is easy Douglas said. What we must do, he declared:

1. Understand Communist purposes and methods. If we do that, their influence will be no greater than their numbers, which he said are few.

2. Stop calling everybody a Communist who espouses a liberal program. That only helps growth of Communist influence.

3. Take more active interest in our political organizations.

4. Keep working at improving our Government.

western European nations have been urging the United States to make the strongest possible commitment to act in case of war.

Faces Ticklish Task

Thus the State Department is faced with the ticklish task of trying to arrive at wording that will be acceptable to the Senate, yet provide the western Europeans with a sense of security.

This was Acheson's first meeting with the full Foreign Relations Committee to discuss the proposed treaty. Until yesterday he had limited his discussions in the Senate to Chairman Connally and Senator Vandenberg, Republican leader in foreign affairs.

Even though no commitments were made, the meeting gave Acheson a chance to get the views of the individual members of the committee.

Connally said Acheson has discussions scheduled with "ambassadors and others" interested in the pact. He indicated Acheson will go ahead with these talks before meeting again with the committee.

The treaty, which would be subject to Senate confirmation, is being negotiated with Canada, Great Britain, France, Belgium the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Smathers Urges Support Of Pact to Legal Limit

(Special to The Washington Post)

Rocky Mount, N. C., Feb. 18.—Representative George Smathers (D., Fla.), a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, tonight said America should give to the proposed North Atlantic alliance "every assistance, support and strength we can legally and morally give."

Addressing the regional meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, he said:

"It is my hope that the United States—the natural leader of democratic countries of the world—will exercise its rightful leadership in the formation of the North Atlantic pact. While it is true that under our Constitution, the Congress of the United States cannot delegate its authority to declare war, still we should give to that pact every assistance, support and strength we can legally and morally give. As President Truman said in his recent inaugural speech, "We must provide unmistakable proof of the joint determination of the free countries to resist armed attack from any quarter.

"We spent billions to fight totalitarianism and we are spending billions today; thousands of our young men gave their lives to fight oppression and dictatorship, and if we are not to make of their sacrifice a hollow mockery, if we are not to waste what has been and is being done in freedom's name, then we must forthrightly accept our obligation to continue the fight for liberty and freedom with every means at our command whenever they are attacked.

"At this time, when the world is torn apart by the struggle of the Communistic oppressors on the one side and democratic freedoms on the other, this is no time to split hairs or shy away from what looks like sharp realistic obligations."

Radio Group Seeks End To Television 'Freeze'

The radio industry yesterday asked the Federal Communications Commission to lift its "freeze" of new television station construction.

The request was made by the Radio Manufacturers Association in a letter to Chairman Wayne Coy. The association includes the General Electric Co.; Zenith Radio Corp.; Allen B. Dumont Laboratories; Radio Corporation of America; Motorola, Inc., and the Philco Corp.

The Government's freeze on applications for new television stations has been in effect since September 30. At that time, Coy called for a halt on approval of new stations to permit a study of possible technical readjustments in the industry.

Airmen Term Tydings' Talk 'Confusing'

NYHT News Service

Air Force officials were wondering last night whether their "air progress" demonstration earlier this week at Andrews Field for the edification of members of Congress may not have resulted in more confusion than enlightenment.

Their doubts stemmed from a speech by Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, to department commanders of the Veterans of Foreign Wars earlier in the day, during which he said the United States had an airplane that could carry 10,000 pounds of bombs from Maine to Moscow in five hours. The plane had enough range, Senator Tydings said, to make a Maine-Moscow round trip and a half without refueling.

Stunned Air Force spokesmen said they didn't have such a bomber and were pretty sure the Navy didn't, either.

Senator Tydings cleared up most of the mystery when he finally was reached on the telephone last night.

"I wasn't giving away any military secrets," he said. "What I was talking about was the Air Force bomber that flew in here the other day from the State of Washington at a speed of more than 600 miles an hour—the B-47 I think they call it. I've got an air chart here that shows the distance between Maine and Moscow as something over 3100 miles so that's where I got the five hours."

Senator Tydings expressed surprise when told that the maximum nonstop range claimed by the Air Force for the B-47 was only a little over 2000 miles, without bomb load—that it was the giant, piston-engined B-36 which was supposed to be able to fly 10,000 miles nonstop with 10,000 pounds of bombs. What he had told the VFW, he said, was that the 15-hour Maine-Moscow round trip and a half could be made "if the B-47 were developed to fly 10,000 miles."

Czechs Turn Wary

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 18 (AP).—Czechoslovakia tonight approached the anniversary of revolution week with an air of extreme caution that amounted to uneasiness.

Police forces have been increased in the capital during the past week, and all high police officials have been ordered to hold themselves on an alert through the anniversary day February 25. It was learned no mass celebration is planned.

Initial Victory Seen for China Peace Policy

Nanking, China, Feb. 18 (U.P.).—Acting President Li Tsung-jen, strong advocate of an immediate peace with the Communists, today appeared to have won an initial victory over Premier Sun Fo in their dispute over the government's peace or war policy.

(An authoritative Kuomintang (National Party) source in Canton said Sun Fo was expected to resign within 10 days and that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek did not plan a return to power, but would leave the situation in Li's hands.)

Chen Ke-wen, secretary general of the legislative Yuan, officially announced the legislative Yuan would hold its next session in Nanking and not in Canton as requested by the premier.

Royall Gives Cabinet Report on Recent Trip

Secretary of Army Royall gave the Cabinet what he said was a complete report yesterday on his recent inspections in Japan, Korea, Alaska, Okinawa, Guam and Hawaii.

Royall said that he reported on his trip to the National Security Council Friday, to the President and his Cabinet this morning and was en route to a meeting of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to discuss with this group the military aspects of his observations.

Asked by reporters if he planned to continue in his Army job, he replied that he had "no plans otherwise."

U. S. Attache Dies in Crash In Argentina

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Feb. 18 (U.P.).—Col. Gerald E. Williams, United States air attache here, his wife and six other Americans were killed when a U. S. Air Force C-47 plane crashed in the mountains of northwestern Argentina, the United States Embassy announced today.

Mrs. Williams was the daughter of Col. Arthur Parker who was killed at Corregidor by the Japanese. Williams was born at Presque Isle, Me.

Other victims were Copilot Capt. Charles H. Mayo, Greenville, N. C.; Master Sergts. Hugh Willis, Newton, S. C.; Uriah Horst, Tacoma, Wash., and Robert C. Frazer, Odessa, Tex.; Tech. Sergt. Linsworth E. Stanton, Cance, Ala. and Sergt. Canestari, who boarded the plane at Panama.

The ill-fated craft was on flight from Panama to Buenos Aires when it crashed late yesterday, some 60 miles west of Salta, Argentina.

United States Air Attache Brig. Gen. B. H. Hovey said the crash occurred shortly before the plane was due to land at Salta, at 5:37 p. m.

Williams graduated from West Point in 1931. He was in the Pacific when Pearl Harbor was attacked and later was made commander of the 391st Bombing Group of the Ninth Air Force in England and Europe.

Subsequently he was chief of staff of the Ninth Air Force at Greenville, S. C.

Bulgarian Churchmen's Arrest Decried by Catholic Leader

A spokesman for the Roman Catholic Church expressed strong indignation at the imprisonment of 15 Protestant church leaders in Bulgaria.

In a statement released here, Archbishop John T. McNicholas, chairman of the administrative board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, said:

"The whole Christian and religious world outside the sphere of Moscow-controlled governments will extend its sympathy to the 15 Protestant Church leaders who are imprisoned in Bulgaria."

The 15, he said, will be tried "according to the Moscow pattern" on "trumped up charges."

He said the leaders of the Orthodox Church as well as Catholic, Protestant and Jewish leaders who do not submit to the "enslavement" of Moscow must expect "infamous defamation, persecution, exile, slavery, hard labor, starvation and death."

"No credence whatever can be given to the alleged confessions of the imprisoned Protestant leaders in Bulgaria," said Archbishop McNicholas. "The Communist courts know how to torture and to administer drugs that break down the physical and mental powers of their victims."

The communistic governments controlled by Moscow, he declared, "will tolerate subservient religious leaders only so long as they serve their vile purpose."

"Americans of all faiths," he concluded, "will not accept the reported self-confessions of guilt imputed to the Protestant ministers in Bulgaria any more than they accepted the self-acknowledged guilt of Cardinal Mindszenty and of those convicted with him in a 'trial' that will ever be one of the blackest pages in the history of Hungary."

Philosophical Unity Called Peace Basis

There will never be world peace until until there is a common philosophical unity, Dr. Mortimer J. Adler of the University of Chicago said last night.

Adler, addressing more than 600 persons attending a meeting of The Charles Carroll Forum at the Hotel Mayflower, said, "I am one of those who believe in world government, but I also believe world government will not produce world peace" until there is a unity of philosophical beliefs.

"If that is a long time off, then it is also worth working a long time for," said Adler, who is also a visiting lecturer at St. John's College, Annapolis, Md., and has been working on an index of thought in a selected list of "best books" in western culture.

"The reason why the great books and the great ideas are of such moment in America is that without them American culture has no depth, no roots," he said, explaining that America has a relatively short history and is without a body of tradition except as it is tied in with the tradition of Western culture.

Adler said "we are living in a period in which there is a great intellectual conflict between science and philosophy. It is a much more active conflict than the war between science and religion."

Defending the position of philosophy, he said, "when philosophy, which is associated with wisdom, is based below science in our hierarchy, then you have an upside down situation.

Adler urged the necessity for an organized body of philosophical thought, "a Summa dealecteca which shall be for the heterodox, secular culture of our day what (St. Thomas Aquinas's) Summa theologica was for the thirteenth century."

Probe Report Says Edner Was Lynched

Athens, Feb. 18 (AP).—A United States investigating officer charged today that Greek guerillas lynched Lieut. Col. Selden R. Edner, an unarmed American observer whose plane crash landed behind guerilla lines near Karpenisi four weeks ago.

The Communist "Free Greece" radio has declared at the time that guerillas shot down the plane and both Edner and his Greek pilot, a Lieutenant Tsoukas, died in the crash. The stripped and mutilated body of Edner, recovered February 10, was identified through dental and medical records.

The charge that guerillas slew Edner was made by Lieut. Col. Daniel F. Riva of East Hartford, Conn., who investigated the crash and talked with many witnesses.

Riva said he believed Edner was injured, but able to step out of the partly wrecked plane unaided. Witness were quoted as saying guerillas killed "the passenger" and then forced a number of them to certify he was an American and that he was found.

Sale of Paper By Eva Peron Is Disclosed

Buenos Aires, Feb. 18 (AP). Senora Maria Eva Duarte de Peron, wife of President Peron, sold the morning newspaper Democracia late in November, 1948, it was disclosed today.

However, the new owners include the closest associates of herself and the president. Executives of the paper said there has been no change in the editorial and operating policies.

Democracia usually speaks almost as an official government newspaper. There have been rumors the past few days, when all Buenos Aires newspapers were closed by a printers' strike, that Senora dePeron had sold the paper and that she was being compelled to retire from public affairs. Actually, her influence with Democracia appears to be the same as before the sale, and she is still active in the Argentine Department of Labor.

The new president of Democracia is Alberto A. Dodero, shipping magnate and close associate of the President and Senora de Peron. The new vice president is Maj. Vicente C. Aloe, who is administrative secretary to President Peron. One of the directors is the Governor of Buenos Aires Province, Col. Domingo A. Mercante, whom many consider a possible Peronista Nominee to succeed Peron when the latter relinquishes the presidency.

Another director, Dr. Armando Mendez San Martin, is private secretary to Senora de Peron herself.

Crazed Workman Dynamites House, Tries 2 Others

Beverly Hills, Calif., Feb. 18 (U.P.) A crazed boilermaker set off a bomb in the home of night club owner H. D. Hover today and was captured as he made the rounds of a half dozen other homes with a truckload of dynamite.

The admitted dynamiter was William Joseph Ward, 55, who told police he was trying to get even with persons responsible for his failure to win workmen's compensation for a war plant injury he suffered in 1944.

Hover's brother-in-law, Dr. Daniel Weller, formerly had lived in the mansion damaged by the bomb.

Ward already had planted bombs at two other homes when he was picked up by Beverly Hills police because he was acting strangely.

Police found a list of addresses in Ward's pocket. They quickly raced to each of the homes listed and searched for bombs.

Home-made explosives were found in the residences of Milton H. Silverberg, a referee for the State Industrial Accident Commission, and Dr. Anthony Racine, commissioner of the State Compensation Board.

Ward said he bought 100 pounds of dynamite and 12 detonator caps and fashioned the bombs in his Long Beach home.

Secrecy Ended At German Trials

Frankfurt, Feb. 18 (AP).—The U. S. Army tonight withdrew its plans to hold a second espionage trial in total secrecy.

The action came after Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American Military Governor, intervened to lift partially the secrecy lid on a trial in Munich this week.

This trial was the first of a series of five involving 20 persons arrested by U. S. inteligence agents last fall.

An Army spokesman said the remaining four trials will be open except to the extent that publicity might endanger certain witnesses of their relatives or the security of the United States.

Veterans' Bonus Bill Signed in North Dakota

Bismarck, N. D., Feb. 18 (U.P.)—Gov. Fred B. Aandahl today signed into law a 27 million dollar North Dakota veterans' bonus bill. It became effective immediately.

Veterans will receive $12.50 for each month of domestic service and $17.50 for each month of foreign service during the period January 1, 1941, through January 1, 1946.

Army Admits It Can't Prove Woman a Spy

By The Associated Press

The United States Army, under criticism for issuing its recent report on wartime Soviet espionage in Japan, virtually admitted yesterday that it had blundered.

Col. George S. Eyster, deputy chief of the Army's public information division, said the division had no proof at hand to back up the charge in the report that Miss Agnes Smedley, American writer on Far East affairs, was a Russian spy.

Miss Smedley has heatedly denied the accusation. Newspaper editorials and syndicated columns have taken the Army to task for the manner in which the report was made public last week.

The critics have contended the report was lurid in style, insufficiently documented, and of a character to arouse suspicion and fear.

The document told how the Russians were able to loot the Japanese cabinet and the German embassy in Tokyo of vital military information. It said the incredibly successful spy ring was headed by Richard Sorge, a German Communist later hanged by the Japanese.

"Although most of the principals are dead," the report said, "some are still at large. They can be expected to be secretly busy with their trade at this very moment in the capitals of the world."

Eyster said the form in which the report was issued was contrary to the usual public relations policy of the Army.

"It is definitely not the policy of the Army department, "he told a reporter," to pin any charge on anybody unless it has, actually in hand, the definite proof."

The public relations officer said he also feels that the narrative style used for the report was open to question. He said the document's "philosophical" observations—including the warning to beware of similar activities here—were out of place in a factual, official account.

If such expressions of opinion were to be left in the public version of the report, Eyster said, an attached statement should have explained the narrative was merely a paper prepared on the basis of information developed by Japanese authorities.

The material came to the Pentagon from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters late in 1947, labeled "secret." At the time the report was made public last week the Army told inquiring reporters the material finally was released for publication because the Army believed it would be "of interest to the public."

Steelworker Says Robed Band Beat Him With a Belt

Chattanooga, Tenn., Feb. 18 (AP). A 29-year-old white steelworker reported tonight a hooded and robed band of 12 to 15 men took him from his home near Lytle, Ga., Tuesday night and beat him with a leather belt.

The victim, Bill Howard, father of three children, said the band charged him with having "cursed my mother and spent her old age pension check on liquor."

"That's not so," his wife, Elizabeth, asserted, "his mother gets a little more than $23 a month and he spent $20 of the last check for medicine and to pay doctor bills for her."

Howard said he had made no official report of the beating.

Million Dollar Burglar Jailed For $9000 Job

White Plains, N. Y., Feb. 18 (U.P.) Handsome Gerard Dennis, 28, the "million dollar jewel thief" with a flair for salesmanship and women, was jailed tonight for one of the measliest jobs of his fabulous career.

Casual and "extremely cooperative," the Canadian-born Dennis spent five hours today confessing a total of 14 robberies in wealthy Westchester County, but protested he simply couldn't remember all his thefts, so numerous and widespread were they.

Found in his pocket was a list of West Coast celebrities who police said apparently had been "cased" for future jobs. They included Louis B. Mayer, Jack Benny, Mrs. Henry Kaiser, Eddie Cantor, Bette Davis, Edgar Bergen, Olivia de Haviland, Kay Francis, Dorothy Lamour, Ginger Rogers and Mary Pickford.

Dennis kept a Beverly Hills, Calif., hideout, complete with a pretty brunette, where police yesterday found $120,000 in gems and furs. He moved in a nice social circle in Cleveland, where he was arrested Wednesday, and had the reputation of being a crackerjack diamond salesman.

Loot Put at Million

Police said he had been linked with robberies totaling $200,000 in the New York suburbs and that his loot probably was around one million dollars.

So it may have miffed the tastefully dressed Dennis to be booked on charges of grand larceny and assault in a $9000 holdup in 1947 of Marshall Tulloch, wealthy boat builder.

Three pretty women figured in Dennis' life, and one was instrumental in bringing about his capture.

She was Gloria Horowitz, 20, a black-haired model who met Dennis in a cocktail lounge. He was a wealthy Canadian temporarily short of cash. She agreed to pawn for him $4000 in jewelry, for a 10 per cent commission, and was irate when a Philadelphia pawnbroker discovered they were stolen.

Miss Horowitz furnished Dennis' photograph and police sent out a circular. A Cleveland man saw the poster and recognized his diamond-salesman friend, "Jerry McCabe," one of the Dennis aliases. Police caught Dennis when he entered a Cleveland jewelry store Wednesday with $20,000 in unset stones.

Alabaman Facing Chair as Rapist Gets 15th Reprieve

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 18 (AP).—Saved from the electric chair for the fifteenth time, a young Negro started out calmly today on another guessing game with death.

Twenty-two-year-old Samuel Taylor of Mobile, Ala., received the latest in a long series of reprieves last night just two hours before he was to have been electrocuted for raping a 14-year-old white girl.

Governor James E. Folsom stepped in to spare the Negro's life, just as he had 14 times before. Taylor was first sentenced to die on Friday, June 13, 1947

Twice his case reached the United States Supreme Court, but both times the Negro's plea was turned down. He claimed a confession used against him was obtained by violence. The case is now before the Supreme Court again.

Koehler Takes Oath For High Navy Post

John T. Koehler, 43, Maryland attorney, was sworn in yesterday as Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

He succeeds Mark Edwin Andrews, whose resignation became effective Tuesday. The oath of office was administered by Rear Admiral George L. Russell, Judge Advocate General, in a ceremony attended by high-ranking naval officers and civilian officials.

Koehler is a native of North Braddock, Pa., and a resident of Bethesda, Md.

Hawaii Urged to Close Leper Colony, End 'Blot'

Honolulu, Feb. 18 (U.P.) — Gov. Ingram Stainback recommended today that Hawaii get rid of the "blot" on its good name by closing the famed 84-year-old leper colony on the island of Molokai.

He said there were fewer than 300 patients in the colony.

Reporter Held Innocent of Kidnap Charge

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 18 (U.P.)—Circuit Judge John T. Culbertson today dismissed a kidnaping and conspiracy indictment filed against Theodore C. Link, St. Louis Post-Dispatch reporter as a result of his investigation of the ambush slaying of gangleader Bernie Shelton.

The judge also dismissed similar indictments against three of Shelton's associates.

His action left only one case pending—an indictment charging former state's attorney Roy W. Hull with having solicited a $25,000 bribe from Shelton in return for dismissal of an assault and battery charge.

Link and the three Shelton associates, Ray Walker, Jack Ashby and "Big Earl" Shelton, Bernie's brother, were indicted on the kidnaping and conspiracy charge last October 23.

Link and the others were charged with having kidnaped Peter Petrakos, onetime associate of the Sheltons, in an effort to find out who killed Shelton last July 27.

Link's indictment last October 23 followed a series of articles in the Post-Dispatch concerning reported corruption of law enforcement officials.

Hunted Overnight, Reading, Pa., Child Found Unharmed

Billy

Three-year-old Billy Abbott vanished at 4:30 p. m., yesterday. A thousand men, women and children pitched into the search. They found him lying in a clump of grass at 1:40 p. m. today.

Examination disclosed no injury.

"I played with one of these last night," Billy said.

"Where?" his father asked him.

"At the house where I slept," Billy replied.

Georgia Hen Lays 10½-Inch Egg

Baldwin, Ga., Feb. 18 (U.P.)—Connie N. Watts said today that one of his Orpington hens had laid a three-in-one egg 10½ inches long.

The hen fruit monstrosity contained three well-developed eggs with eight yolks in all, he said.

The outer egg measures six inches around the middle, he said. Inside was another egg, including shell, that was six inches in circumference and in the center was a third. The two largest eggs had three yolks each while the third contained two yolks.

Malaria Test Wins Leopold ParoleHearing

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 18 (U.P.)—Nathan Leopold, who with Richard Loeb was convicted of the sensational "thrill" murder of a kidnaped boy in 1924, today was granted a parole hearing because he served as a "guinea pig" during wartime malaria experiments.

State authorities said Leopold will be given a hearing here April 12, despite the urging of the sentencing judge that he never be paroled. He is serving sentences of life and 99 years.

Leopold and Loeb, both sons of wealthy Chicagoans, were convicted of the kidnap-slaying of Bobbie Franks, 14, of Chicago. They were defended by Clarence Darrow, famed criminal lawyer of that era.

Loeb was slashed to death with a knife by a fellow prisoner. Normally Leopold would have to complete 20 years of the life sentence and 33 years of the 99-year term before he would be eligible for parole.

Advice Refused So Warden Sent Dead Canary

North Hollywood, Calif., Feb. 18 (AP).—To Warden F. B. Swope of Alcatraz Prison: En route to you, via express, is one dead canary.

It was sent by Mrs. Minnie T. King of North Hollywood, who is vice president of the National Roller and Color Club whose members breed canaries.

Mrs. King says that she wrote recently to Robert Stroud who despite being a solitary lifer at Alcatraz is recognized as a specialist in bird disease. All she wanted, she says, was advice on what to do for two very sick canaries. Her letter was returned to her with a notation it could not be delivered, she claims.

The indignant Mrs. King dispatched letters to President Truman and her Congressman. And yesterday one of the birds died.

That's the bird you're getting, warden. It's marked "personal."

Baltimore Police Have New Lead In Bank Robbery

Baltimore, Feb. 18 (AP).—Police today released four men they had questioned about a $30,000 bank robbery last Tuesday and began working on a new lead.

A rooming house operator in the western part of the downtown business district told them that two tenants left in a rush about an hour and a half after Tuesday's holdup.

Investigators found they had left behind the key to a baggage locker at a bus station. It yielded a cloth zipper bag and suitcases with men and women's clothing. Several Philadelphia newspapers were found in the room.

The new lead fitted in with a police theory that a gang of specialists from out of town pulled off the bank robbery.

Tennesseean Denies Klan Membership

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
C. R. TERRY

Chattanooga, Tenn., Feb. 18 (AP).—A Chattanooga grocer, indicted yesterday on charges of violating Tennessee's 80-year-old anti-Ku Klux Klan law, denied today he is a member of the Klan.

C. R. Terry, 48, was arrested yesterday in what officers said was believed to be the first case of its kind here. A nine-count indictment was returned against him in connection with a raid by about 75 masked men at a Lookout Mountain nightclub last December 11.

Terry, free today on $200 bond, said "somebody got their marbles mixed . . . I'm not a member of the Klan and I don't know what they've been up to. I don't know where they go because I don't go with them."

Three counts against Terry are classed as felonies and carry penalties of 10 to 20 years in prison. The other six counts are for misdemeanors, each carrying a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $500 and a workhouse sentence up to one year.

The date for Terry's trial will be set Saturday by Judge Raulston Schoolfield.

Rankin Gets Package From Legion—Empty

Representative Rankin (D., Miss.) may have received a present yesterday. He isn't sure—the package arrived empty.

Bearing the return address of the Robert E. Lee Post of the American Legion, Yonkers, N. Y., the carton was delivered to Rankin with nothing in it.

"I'll write and thank them," Rankin told a reporter, "and maybe I'll find out what I didn't get."

Judge Medina Halts Cross-Examination

In Neglect Case

Third Officer Acquitted by Army Court

By The Associated Press

Lieut. Col. George E. Pinard of Wessington Springs, S. Dak., yesterday was acquitted by a Fort Meade (Md.) general court-martial on a charge of neglecting American soldiers in disciplinary camp at Wurzburg, Germany.

Colonel Pinard was the third officer to be acquitted on charges growing out of complaints by soldiers that they were frostbitten because they had insufficient clothing and blankets. The incident was in January of 1947.

One of the witnesses against them was Pvt. Joseph Suggs, whose feet were amputated after gangrene set in.

'Sally' Witness Tells of Threat efforts to bring out the threat angle.

"Do you know of any threats made against Miss Gillars?" Laughlin had asked.

"Just what the defendant had told me herself," was the reply.

"What did she tell you?"

Here Kelley objected that such testimony would be invalid as hearsay and his objection was sustained.

The morning session provided a dramatic surprise when a former GI war prisoner, called on by defense to testify that Miss Gillars had not represented herself as a Red Cross worker, shouted that the defendant had threatened Americans in a German PW camp in 1944.

The witness, Gunnar Drangsholt, a Northwestern University law student, originally had been called by the Government but his appearance had been waived by Kelley.

Laughlin, taking Drangsholt as a defense witness, asked if Miss Gillars had represented herself as a Red Cross aide.

The slim, bespectacled witness replied that she had not.

Then disregarding Laughlin's "That's all," the witness, responding to questions by Kelley, continued: "She said she was an American citizen and was doing what she was doing out of loyalty and patriotism. She also said she was paid by the German government."

Over repeated objections by Laughlin, Drangsholt continued: "I asked her if it wasn't strange that if she was an American citizen she could go floating around Germany while us Americans were locked up behind barbed wire.

"She said she had high ideals," the witness said contemptuously, adding that the prisoners refused to take part in interviews for radio broadcast that she had been soliciting.

"They branded her as a traitor," he rattled on, his words crashing heedlessly into Laughlin's loud objections.

"When she was leaving the camp, she turned around and said: 'You're the most ungrateful Americans I've ever met and you will regret this.'"

Then, glaring at the silver-haired defendant, Drangsholt cried:

"She threatened us as she left—that American citizen—that woman right there!"

Kelley said yesterday that, responding to a request by Laughlin, he would bring Horst Cleinow, the former German radio official referred to in the 'threats" testimony, to Washington for use by the defense. Cleinow is now in New York.

In the meantime, Laughlin filed a petition in the United States Court of Appeals for a writ of mandamus commanding the Justice Department, the Army and Judge Curran to arrange for the transportation of certain other defense witnesses from Germany.

The petition held Miss Gillars' constitutional rights under the sixth amendment were violated by Judge Curran's refusal Thursday to take such steps. Curran held his court had no jurisdiction over non-Americans living abroad.

The trial will be resumed Monday at 10 a. m. with the possibility that Miss Gillars will take the stand.

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—Federal Judge Harold R. Medina today suddenly cut off cross-examination of a prosecution witness by counsel for 11 indicted top United States Communists.

Defense counsel immediately termed the court's action 'a violation of due process of law."

The witness was Joseph F. McKenzie, Federal jury clerk, the first person called by the Government to refute defense claims of discrimination in the way Federal juries are picked here.

Because of this alleged discrimination, the defense argues, the indictment against the 11 members of the Communist Party's national committee should be voided.

Set Deadline on Questions

They are charged with conspiring to overthrow the United States Government.

But during the morning session today, Medina announced that the cross-exanimation would cease promptly at 3 p. m. When the court reconvened after lunch at 2:30 p. m., the defense resumed its questioning of McKenzie.

Then at 3:05 p. m., Medina said: "The cross-examination is over It is 3:05 p. m."

He said he would allow defense lawyers to present argument against his rulings.

Harry Sacher, defense attorney, asked: "Why can't we take the time for cross-examination instead of argument?"

"Because I have made a ruling," Medina said.

Medina's ruling apparently was in keeping with his pledge to speed up the trial, now in its second month. He has repeatedly accused the defense of deliberate stalling tactics.

The defense charges that the jury system here discrimates in favor of the rich and against the poor and members of minority groups, including Jews and Negroes.

Under cross-examination, McKenzie has testified that questionnaires submitted to many Negroes in past years for possible jury service have been marked with a circled "c" to indicate Negro.

Train Passengers Met Monday, Plan Wedding Thursday

Council Bluffs, Iowa, Feb. 18 (AP).—Love that bloomed across the aisle of a train culminated in marriage today

Marine Corpl. Floyd H. Simonis, 23, of Milwaukee and Mary Ella Taunt, 19, Flint, Mich., were complete strangers when they boarded a train at San Francisco Monday and sat down across the aisle from each other.

Simonis admitted that he didn't cross the aisle until Wednesday. But by last night, when the train stopped in Omaha, the couple got off with plans to be married there.

When Simonis crossed the aisle, said Miss Taunt, "I'd already made up my mind to say yes if he asked me to marry him."

"We did most of the talking with our eyes," Simonis explained.

House Unit Would Admit Aliens Who Can Aid U. S. Intelligence

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Legislation permitting aliens who have intelligence information of value to the United States to be admitted without regard to immigration restrictions was approved by a House Armed Services subcommittee yesterday.

Chairman Carl Durham (D., N. C.) said his subcommittee had incorporated such a proviso in a bill giving the Central Intelligence Agency permanent legislative basis.

Officials said the admission of aliens was asked by the Government largely to permit "defiects" from Communism to be brought to the United States when desirable. Most other countries have similar provisions to allow aliens with important intelligence data to be accepted.

Both the Central Intelligence Director and the Attorney General would have to approve the entrance of an alien under the bill and find it would be "in the interest of national security or essential to the furtherance of the national intelligence mission."

The alien and his immediate family would be accepted for permanent residence and eligibility for citizenship by the bill. A maximum of one hundred persons could be admitted annually.

Representative Durham said the subcommittee was informed that Government intelligence reporting procedure has been altered to prevent a repetition of the Bogota incident. After the revolution broke out last year during the Inter-American Conference in Colombia the CIA informed Congress it had sent warnings of trouble which were not forwarded to higher authority. Under the change, Durham said, important CIA reports would go direct to the President.

McQueen Asks Moratorium on Scare Figures

By S. Oliver Goodman

Scare statistics may slowly dig the Nation into a good-sized depression, L. A. McQueen warned last night.

McQueen

McQueen, vice president in charge of sales for General Tire & Rubber Co., addressed more than 500 regional tire distributors at their annual conference in the Statler.

"What this country needs—and right now—is for business and Government to give their statisticians and economists a 90-day leave," he said.

"Too much confusion has been caused by conflicting statistics and too much propaganda about a business depression. American salesmen and advertising men can help swing our economy in the right direction if a lot of so-called experts will let them alone."

Pointing to a report of 200 billion dollars in personal savings accounts, McQueen added: "The wants of the United States people for clothing, washing machines, refrigerators, automobiles, tires and many other commodities are not nearly filled, but the statistics and figures have these people frightened . . . Give the economic slide-rule experts a leave of absence and I am sure you will find a new outlook for business!"

The visiting tiremen were told that General's business was good in 1948, although profits were down due to sharply higher costs. The meeting was directed by Howard Bellows, Eastern Division manager, and included speeches by other General Tire executives. S. P. Seward, vice president of D'Arcy Advertising Agency, outlined General's 1949 advertising plans which call for the greatest newspaper use in the company's history.

BRIGHT SPOT: Washington department store sales in the week ended February 12 showed an increase of 5 per cent over the same 1948 period, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday. Dollar volume for the Fifth Federal Reserve District during the same week was unchanged. For the four weeks ended February 12 local sales were 8 per cent improved while the regional figure was 4 per cent higher.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Edwin A. Olson has been named general traffic manager of Libby, McNeill & Libby, food canners . . . Frank H. Rich, formerly with the Hecht Co., has joined Rich's Shoe Store as vice president . . . William H. Rippard, controller of Perpetual Building Association, has been elected second vice president of the newly-formed Society of Savings and Loan Controllers . . . Thomas J. Harris has been appointed manager of international cargo sales for American Airlines . . . Wilson O. Green has been named sales manager of the Fisk tires division, U. S. Rubber Co.

DIVIDEND: Directors of Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., declared a quarterly dividend of 50 cents a common share, payable April 1 to stock of record March 4. Last year, the chain paid three quarterly dividends of 40 cents and a 50-cent dividend in the last quarter, making a total of $1.70. A spokesman said yesterday's declaration could be construed as placing Peoples Drug stock on a regular $2 annual basis.

TWA ISSUE: Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc. (Trans World Airline) is offering an additional 404,112 shares of common stock. Present shareholders have been mailed 'rights' to subscribe at $10 a share, on the basis of one share for each five shares held. Hughes Tool Co., holder of 1,486,523 shares of TWA stock, has agreed to purchase 297,304 shares of the new stock. Any of the remaining stock not subscribed by present shareholders by March 7 will be purchased by an underwriting group headed by Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane.

ANOTHER HOLIDAY: Tuesday, Washington's Birthday, will be a legal holiday in Washington and throughout the country. Local banks and building and loan associations will be closed, as well as security and commodity markets in New York and Washington.

ODD LOTS: The Nation's fire loss totaled $57,926,000 in January, 8.1 per cent under the same month last year . . . The Puerto Rican rum industry with the cooperation of the Puerto Rico Industrial Development Co. has launched a million-dollar advertising and promotion campaign to increase the sale of rum . . . The Burlington Railroad plans to lay about 52 miles of new trackage to establish a new short route between Chicago and Kansas City, at a cost of 14 million dollars . . . Retail price of home heating oil was 0.2 cents a gallon in Metropolitan New York area . . . Abbott Laboratories directors voted to split capital stock two for one, if stockholders approve.

U. S. Urged to Keep German Factories

Drops 30 to 50%

Price Slides Slash Paris Living Cost

Paris, Feb. 18 (U.P.).—A spectacular decline in French farm product prices has sent the cost of living tumbling in Paris.

Some prices have dropped 30 to 50 per cent since February 1.

Farmers are unable to market thousands of tons of potatoes at prices one fifth below those of two years ago.

Eggs are at the lowest level since 1946. Black market butter is selling only slightly higher than the legal controlled price. Meat, wine and poultry prices declined.

Industrial prices still were not seriously affected. But for the first time in 10 years production and stocks on hand exceeded the demand. Retail stores are holding big clearance sales.

The downward price trend is believed to be mainly responsible for a sudden decline in gold and black market foreign exchange rates.

Farmers, caught by the break in agricultural prices, have begun unloading great sums of prewar gold Louis, worth about four dollars in terms of pre-1933 American currency, which they had hoarded.

The Louis, quoted at 6300 paper francs a few weeks ago, went down to 5200 francs, the lowest price since last September. The American dollar declined from a recent high of 550 francs to 435 today.

The decline in farm prices has eased the pressure by organized labor for new wage increases. The Communist-controlled General Confederation of Labor has suddenly let up its campaign for a new over-all 25 per cent wage boost.

Economists are worried lest a too sudden and too large decline in the price structure might have bad economic repercussions and cause some unemployment.

By the United Press

The Joint Congressional Foreign Aid Committee recommended yesterday that the United States stop turning over German plants as reparations to its wartime allies.

It suggested to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that Marshall Plan funds be used to buy the reparation claims of other countries. The committee is considering extension of the European Recovery Program.

The joint group said the dismantling of German factories must stop because of the change in European conditions since 1945. It referred to the spread of communism throughout eastern Europe.

Reporting on the United States stockpile of strategic materials, the committee said the United States now depends on Russia for one half of its metallurgical chrome.

It said this country also depends greatly on high-grade manganese imports, about 1,500,000 tons a year, from Russia, Africa, India and Latin America.

The Economic Cooperation Administration has been unable to complete any transactions for obtaining strategic materials for United States stockpiles and ECA head Paul G. Hoffman suggested recently that the entire program be reorganized.

The committee found that foreign cartels, such as that controlling Belgium industrial diamonds, has stalled the program.

A series of four reports submitted to the foreign relations committee said that Great Britain and France have resisted every suggestion by this country that the German plant dismantling program be restudied.

It said the British and French still are delivering German factories to Russia as reparations although the United States stopped in May, 1946.

Experts See End of Slump

sation from their States. There are 600,000 jobless veterans collecting GI Bill of Rights "readjustment allowances." There is another group of idle transportation workers getting weekly payments from the Railroad Retirement Board.

Ewan Clague, chief of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, yesterday pointed out that the three million jobless are but a small proportion of the 57 million persons who are at work. He said there was no cause for concern unless the jobless rolls were to jump to five million and stay there beyond April.

It is in April that construction starts booming again after a winter letdown. In April, too, comes the Easter trade pickup and new activity in agriculture.

Statistics Commissioner Clagu said there is every reason to believe that the upturn in employment will come as usual this spring, with a continuation of the high production in housing, auto manufacturing and steel.

A similar feeling of optimism is held by Robert C. Goodwin, director of the Bureau of Employment Security, and his experts. They point out that for the several weeks now there has been a slackening in the number of persons filing their first claim for unemployment compensation. This indicates a downward trend in new industrial layoffs, Goodwin explained.

Analysts in both bureaus declared there were signs that the postwar "shakeout" of abnormal war expansion appeared to be leveling off in a number of industries.

The "shakeout"—which is the process of returning from war boom to "normal" peacetime produce—began early in 1946, affecting furs, jewelry and liquors. Later that year and through 1947 came the adjustments in machine tools, rubber tires and tubes, radios and stoves. And last year the trend to peacetime "normality" began catching up with cotton textiles, boots and shoes, refrigerators, washing machines and furniture.

The unusual winter—heavy snows in the West and mild weather in the East—have had a hand in the current job slump. The heavy snows not only adversely affect logging and lumber activities in the West but construction activity all over the East as well. The mild winter in the East has hit hard at coal mining and the winter retail and service trade. The drop in coal production, and the snow, have cut into rail traffic, with resultant layoffs.

Despite the present period of high employment, some areas have been hard hit by unemployment. For example, Cumberland, Md., with its major activities in tires and tubes, rayon garments and railroads has some 4000 jobless. There are more than 15,000 idle in Baltimore. On the other hand, because of the continuing boom in steel, Pittsburgh is rolling along at high prosperity.

Ball Bearing Plant To Drop Several Hundred

Meriden, Conn., Feb. 17 (AP).—The layoff of "several hundred" employes of General Motors' New Departure plant here was announced tonight by Plant Manager William P. Murden.

Murden said decreased demand for ball bearings of smaller sizes was responsible for the cutback in employment.

'Disinflation,' Nourse Says

Nourse said, because he believed the present situation represented a decline in inflationary forces instead of the beginning of a depression. Disinflation, he explained, meant pressures were being taken off of prices, while deflation could mean a collapse of the price structure.

Anyway, he said, "I'm not alarmed over price declines unless people get jittery and get out of the market."

By way of explanation, Dr. Nourse turned to the new-automobile market. While he doubted there would be any price cuts this year, he said it already has become easier to buy new cars at list prices and at more favorable trade-in terms.

Before the joint economic committee, James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the CIO, said industry could bring on a depression by planning for it. He denied that living costs actually had dropped and said newspapers were "misleading the public when they give a steady diet of this 'reduction in prices.'"

Board Chairman Philip D. Reed of the General Electric Co. agreed closely with Dr. Nourse, saying that "in general, the inflationary trend has been reversed." Recent price declines, he told the committee, were a "healthy corrective" rather than the beginning of recession.

James G. Patton of the National Farmers Union took issue with Reed on his description of the trend as "healthy." It might be healthy for the economy, he declared, but was just the opposite for the workman out of a job or the farmer unble to make a living on his produce.

Emerson Schmidt of the United States Chamber of Commerce said he agreed that "general inflationary pressures are about over" but that didn't mean some prices wouldn't go higher. Some industry prices were too low, he declared, and must be readjusted, but he felt the President's proposals "could generate a very serious recession" by leaving businessmen uncertain of the future and reluctant to expand facilities and production.

Albert Goss, president of the National Grange, said he thought "we are past the peak of inflation. Some prices are still going up but I think we are close to the end of it."

Meyer Kestnbaum, president of Hart, Schaffner & Marx, also expressed the view that the national economy was in a period of transition. He opposed the President's price control and rationing recommendations and said a fourth-round wage increase would be "a catastrophe."

Others taking part were Roger Fleming of the American Farm Bureau Federation; A. F. Whitney of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; Lewis Hines of the AFL; William L. Batt of SKF Industries; S. Abbot Smith of the Smaller Business Association of New England, and Ralph W. Robey of the National Association of Manufacturers.

1134 Huntington, W. Va., shop workers will be laid off for a week beginning next Tuesday.

Declines in freight and passenger traffic were cited as the cause of the action.

GE Plant at Lynn To Lay Off 550 More

Lynn, Mass., Feb. 18 (AP).—The West Lynn plant of the General Electric Co. announced today layoff of 550 workers, effective March 4. The reduction will bring to 650 the number dropped from payrolls since the first of the year, the company said. A decrease in orders for meters, time switches and transformers was blamed.

Free Hand Asked for Truman On Foreign Trade Agreements

By The Associated Press

Spokesmen for farm and foreign trade groups yesterday urged a free hand for President Truman in mankig reciprocal trade agreements, as already voted by the House.

But Senator Lodge (R., Mass.) and Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee demanded "stop, look and listen" provisions to "protect American industry against harmful foreign competition."

Republican Senators Millikin (Col.), Butler (Neb.), Brewster (Me.) and Martin (Pa.) complained that unemployment and declining sales now threaten such domestic industries as textiles, glass and pottery, and watchmaking.

They fired a series of critical questions at William S. Swingle, executive vice president of the National Foreign Trade Council, Inc., of New York City.

Swingle backed the unfettered reciprocal trade treaty extension to June 1951 passed by the House. It repeals a number of the restrictions which the Eightieth Congress placed on President Truman's power to negotiate trade agreements with foreign nations.

These include a requirement that the Tariff Commission investigate before a trade agreement is made, and that the President explain to Congress if the agreement cuts a tariff below the commission's recommendations.

Swingle said an "escape clause" in trade agreements would afford enough protection against damage to domestic industry and trade. The clause was agreed on by the United States and other nations at Geneva in 1947.

"You are 100 per cent wrong," Brewster told the witness, saying that the escape clause would not opearte until damage had been caused by actual imports. The clause would reserve to the United States the right to withdraw a concession if increased imports under it threaten domestic production of similar articles.

"A fellow can't live on nothing for a year," Brewster added.

Brewster said New England woolen and textile mills already have been hard hit.

W. R. Ogg, appearing for the American Farm Bureau Federation, said farmers need expanded exports under a flexible trade agreements program.

"We oppose any crippling restrictions," he said.

Brewster asked for the list of the 1000 organizations that Single said he represented.

Swingle agreed to supply this if it is not published, saying he wished to protect manufacturers, exporters, bankers, shipping interests and others from solicitation.

Majority Leader Lucas (D., Ill.) protested that Brewster was prying into business secrets just because the witness supported the Administration bill.

Brewster shot back that any opponent was subjected to such questions and added:

"Advocates of free trade should take their whiskers off too, and explain whom they represent."

Senator Lodge, first witness, said foreign competition now is causing distress and unemployment in fishing, leather, jewelry, textile and watchmaking industries in Massachusetts.

AFL Says Nation Can Build 1,500,000 New Homes a Year

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

This Nation has both the labor and materials to build 1,500,000 homes a year, the American Federation of Labor said yesterday.

Richard J. Gray, president of the Building and Construction Trades Department, AFL, said Congress has only to give the word for American labor to start licking the housing crisis.

Gray, virtually the last witness before the Senate Banking Subcommittee concludes its study of housing legislation, declared that the private building industry has shown it cannot do the job and congressional action is necessary.

Chairman John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) said the subcommittee will start writing up its legislation Wednesday with a view to haaving a bill ready for Senate consideration by the end of this month.

"The serious shortage of building materials which limited construction during the early postwar period is now largely a thing of the past," Gray told the subcommittee.

He added that there are enough trained workers to keep up the 1,500,000-a-year housing pace for the next 10 years.

The AFL, he said, has set 15 million new low-priced homes as "the housing program America needs." This, he declared, would include the building of one million low-cost public housing units in the next four years.

If the housing bill is ready by the end of this month it will coinside with the February 28 date that Administration leaders have agreed upon to consider a filibuster-curbing rules change. It has been agreed, however, that the housing bill will have the right of way in that event, and the filibuster fight will thus be further postponed.

At least two separate housing measures are expected to reach the Senate simultaneously. One would authorize a public housing program, aids to the "little man" to build a low-cost home, and Federal loans and grants for slum clearance.

The other is expected to deal with credit guarantees and mortgage insurance and probably Federal loans to housing cooperatives.

The Right Rev. Msgr. John O'Grady, eloquent secretary of the National Conference of Catholic Charities, made a strong plea before the subcommittee yesterday for action on subsidized public housing for low-income families.

An equally strong plea was made by the Rev. Thomas B. Keehn of the Social Action Council of the Congregational Christian Churches.

Goodrich C. White, president of Emory University at Atlanta, Ga., indorsed a proposal by Senators Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) and Matthew Neely (D., W. Va.) to provide Federal grants and loans to help educational institutions house students and faculty members.

Meanwhile before the House Banking and Currency Committee, Mayor Eugene I. Van Antwerp of Detroit argued for strengthened rent control laws on the ground of the fire and health hazards created by the present laws.

"The present rent control law," said Van Antwerp, "has given encouragement to the illegal conversion of single and two-family homes to a high occupancy rate in violation of laws relating to fire, health and safety regulations."

Van Antwerp showed areas of Detroit, not considered slum areas, where these "illegal conversions" had become prevalent. In these areas, he said, fire losses had jumped 400 per cent. He told the committee that more than 250 persons had been killed by fire in Detroit in the last four years, and that two thirds of these were killed in substandard converted areas.

Another witness yesterday was the Rev. Wallace J. Murphy of Tulsa, Okla., property owner who started the so-called "land strike" in protest against rent controls.

He denounced rent controls as "ungodly" and Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods and his staff as "incompetent, arbitrary, unfair and unethical."

The clergyman denounced rent control as "far more damaging and far-reaching and destructive than Hitler or Hirohito ever was." He was asked no questions by any committee member.

Jessup Asails Soviet as Fear Manufacturer

Des Moines, Feb. 18 (AP).—Dr. Philip C. Jessup, the new American Ambassador-at-large, tonight said Russia is manufacturing fear behind the Iron Curtain while 52 other United Nations are openly building peace.

He defended the proposed North Atlantic pact as a device that would not conflict in any way with the aims of the U. N. or the letter of the U. N. Charter provisions for regional alliances.

These points were made in a speech prepared for delivery to the eleventh annual National Farm Institute. It was devoted to discussion of the first and third points in President Truman's inaugural address: support of the United Nations and strengthening of freedom-loving nations against dangers of aggression.

Jessup said Soviet tactics and refusal to cooperate with majorities in the United Nations had "neither poisoned our policy" nor succeeded in wrecking the U. N.

"At the same time," he said, "I do not hesitate to say that the attitude of the Soviet Union is making it more difficult for the U. N. to do its job. . . . Behind its Iron Curtain it is manufacturing fear. Out in the open we, along with 51 other countries are building peace."

Jessup was named by President Truman last week to sit in for the State Department on international conferences.

Jessup said any idea that the Atlantic Pact would be inconsistent with American policy supporting the U. N. was incorrect. It does not by-pass, substitute for or weaken the U. N., he said.

The ambassador-at-large said "great strides" are being made toward a European union and that the Atlantic links, rather than separates, America and Europe.

The 1948 flexible farm price support law should be given a trial, a leading farm spokesman asserted in voicing opposition to the proposal for farm price supports at 90 per cent of parity.

Prices "No. 1 Problem"

Allan Kline, Chicago, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, told the institute that prices are the Nation's No. 1 problem.

Congress should set up a joint committee "with the best bloomin' staff in the United States" to study the price problem, he said.

Kline said a "steady deterioration" is taking place in the wholesale price level, "with farm prices going down twice as fast as other prices."

He said a 90 per cent Federal farm price support law would bring on overwhelming surpluses and declared:

"The 1948 long-range farm program provides for the highest farm price supports we've ever tried in peacetime and we ought to see how it works before we try anything higher."

Wallace F. Bennett of Salt Lake City, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, discussed security in another institute address. He described the need for security as "the great challenge of our time" and said it cannot be found in atomic weapons or in laws but only in the integrity of mankind.

Clarence Francis, New York, N. Y., chairman of the board of General Foods Corp., asserted in an interview that the national economy is moving swiftly into a buyer's market. He said there was nothing in this development to cause alarm.

Argentina Quits Parley

Essche said, has delayed the work of the committee on price.

Meantime the Associated Press reported from Buenos Aires that President Juan D. Peron is desperately trying to bolster his country's shaky economic structure.

On the advice of a newly constitued national economic council, Argentia has reinforced rules against importing luxuries. Many regulations designed to close loopholes against the entry of automobiles and other nonessentials have been adopted.

These measures are expected to do only part of the job. Among other measures it is expected the council will take is the sale of Argentine agricultural surpluses. It hopes to sell about five million dollars worth of hides to the European Economic Cooperation Administration for occupied Germany. The council also is reported ready to forget high prices asked for linseed oil and wheat in an effort to interest outside buyers.

Spaatz Urges New Type of Defense School

Gen. Carl (Tooey) Spaatz yesterday proposed taking West Point and Annapolis away from the Army and Navy and converting them into unified "Defense Academies," with the Army, Navy and Air Force each getting one third of their annual graduates.

The retired Air Force chief of staff advanced the plan as a remedy for the "tedious bickering" between the armed forces. Writing in Newsweek, he said the American people are "definitely tired" of such feuding.

Spaatz's suggestion aroused particular interest inasmuch as one of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's major assignment during his present temporary recall to duty is to work out some change in the present academy setup which will replace one service loyalty by loyalty to the armed forces.

There was speculation in military circles that Spaatz—now a columnist for Newsweek—might be writing as a reporter about what "Ike" has in mind, rather than simply putting forward his own views.

Eisenhower was given the job, partly to promote unity and partly because something must be done soon about a source of officers for the Air Force.

Several alternatives have been proposed. One would create a third academy for the Air Force. Another would enlarge Annapolis and West Point to take care of the needs of all the services. Still another would convert the present academies into postgraduate schools taking in only college graduates.

Spaatz opposes the first two plans as unduly costly. He says that the three stervices probably can be reduced in size in years to come and an expansion is not warranted. Apparently he opposes the third proposal as destructive of the "splendid traditions" of West Point and Annapolis.

Air, Sea, Land Training for All

By putting the two schools directly under the Secretary of Defense and broadening their curricula to prepare for any of the armed forces, a satisfactory solution would be achieved, says Spaatz.

"It is not enough to work toward unification by education in common of senior officers in higher institutions," said he, mentioning the National War College. "They must be brought together at the very lowest echelon of their military training . . .

"It would benefit all officers to have a basic knowledge of the three services. Officers so broadly trained would be of greater value to the country in this age of expanding world responsibilities."

By transforming the two schools into defense academies, says Spaatz, a West Pointer himself, the "healthy, stimulating and time-honored rivalries" would continue with one "all-important" difference. Their rivalry would continue, but it would be between West Point and Annapolis, not the Army and the Navy.

Spaatz also urges modification of the law to permit officers to shift from one service to another. He drew a parallel between the present and the situation years ago when the Army adopted a single promotion list. If they hadn't, Cavalry officers—facing an end to their Army career—probably would have fought bitterly against replacement of the horse by the tank.

U. N. Defers Action On Soviet Slave Labor Charges

Lake Success, Feb. 18 (AP).—United Nations action on slave labor charges against Russia was postponed indefinitely tonight after the Soviet delegate announced he wanted to debate the issue further.

It was agreed by the 18-nation Economic and Social Council that it would act on the issue, but no date was set for resumption of the debate.

The United States apparently has plenty of support for council approval of its resolution, but Russia has made it clear no investigators would get behind the Iron Curtain.

Boost For Tolerance

Arlington members of the American Association of University Women have given a refreshing display of understanding and tolerance on the question of Negro membership. Their unanimous vote to back and strengthen national by-laws governing chapter procedure holds up to unfavorable contrast the defiance practiced by the Washington branch. The national organization of AAUW has held that the only qualification for membership is an approved college degree. Segregation—or, rather, complete discrimination against Negroes—is still the rule in the local group. Despite sharp internal division, the Washington branch some months ago obtained a court order preventing the national organization from withdrawing its charter for failure to conform to national standards.

The reasoning behind this praiseworthy stand of the Arlington branch was well expressed by the president. "I firmly believe that the South isn't ready for a general antisegregation law," she explained, "but I believe a group like the AAUW is the place for nonsegregation to start." It is not so surprising that there are groups of intelligent women chipping away at the wall of discrimination. What is surprising is that in the Capital of the United States a body that purports to represent university women still clings to false criterion of membership.

Farm Prices

A year ago a violent break occurred in prices of wheat, corn and other farm products, bringing with it predictions of a general business recession. But despite the 1948 February collapse the wholesale price index for all commodities continued to advance, reaching its peak last August. Furthermore, the wholesale price index for farm products was close to the January level by June, while the wholesale food index was well above its January level by the end of July. Thereafter farm and food prices began to decline and by the end of 1948 wholesale prices of farm products were about 10 per cent lower than a year earlier, and December wholesale food prices were 5 per cent below the level of December, 1947. However, averages of this kind cover up erratic fluctuations in prices of particular commodities. Prices of grains, for instance, were 35 per cent below the level of the previous year at the end of 1948, and since then there has been another sharp drop. To be more specific, wheat sold for immediate delivery brought $2.08 a bushel last week in Kansas City compared with $3.10 in 1947, while corn sold in Chicago for $1.19 per bushel compared with $2.83 a year ago.

The gyrations of the speculative market can be discounted to some extent; but the downward trend of cash prices for basic crops cannot be dismissed as a temporary phenomenon. On the contrary, it points to a relaxation, if not a disappearance, of inflationary pressures in an important segment of the economy. We would not venture to predict whether the declines that have occurred in the prices of basic farm commodities are a prelude to a general price deflation. Nor would it be safe to hazard a guess as to the future course of farm prices. For the Government will undoubtedly make strenuous efforts to prop sagging farm prices through loans and stepped-up buying of grain for export.

It seems fairly certain, however, that the strong particularistic inflationary trend that lifted prices of farm products and food to dizzy heights has run its course. Export demands for grains and foodstuffs, made all the more pressing by a succession of poor European crops, coupled with high domestic demands sustained by inflated consumer incomes, encouraged American farmers to step up production in response to high and rapidly rising prices. Favored by good weather, bumper crops have been harvested, with the result that supply has overtaken and exceeded demand at existing price levels.

The high prices that have prevailed for food—and still prevail in retail markets—have also been a powerful influence in accelerating inflationary price increases in other areas of the economy. For example, the high cost of food has given impetus to the drive for wage increases and these wage increases have in turn increased production costs and raised prices of nonagricultural commodities. The upward price adjustments in nonagricultural commodities have so far largely offset the effect on the general price level of agricultural price deflation. Divergent price trends of this sort help to explain why some economists, notably the President's Council of Economic Advisers, conclude that inflationary influences are still dominant and back the President's demands for legislative anti-inflationary curbs.

The question that is now being debated is whether the drop in farm prices will spread to other lines of production and bring about a general business recession or should simply be regarded as a needed corrective adjustment of a badly unbalanced price structure. The answer to that question lies in the realm of prophecy because psychology as well as economics are involved. More light will be thrown on the situation when there has been sufficient time for the drop in wholesale food prices to be reflected in comparable declines in living costs, which so far have been negligible. If lower living costs remove the pressure for wage increases, one of the major obstacles to industrial expansion will be eliminated. At the same time, relieved from the pressure of excessively high food costs, effective consumer demand for the products of industry will be strengthened.

Atlantic Association

As is not unusual these days, there is far more substance about the upshot of the Lange mission to Washington in the British newspapers than in our own. Mr. Lange stopped off in London, and evidently gave the diplomatic correspondents of the British newspapers a complete "fill-in." From the Times account we gather that

> The view of the United States Government was that the more comprehensive the grouping of western Europe, the more effective it would be in preventing aggression. The United States Government also pointed out that military supplies for the defense of western Europe being short, there must be priority for countries which cooperated in the planning of defense, otherwise such supplies as were available would not be utilized to the maximum effect.

For the rest the Norwegians were told that they were under no pressure from America and that no bases would be asked of them. In other words, the policy of the United States appears to be unchanged in preferring Scandinavia in an Atlantic Pact to a Scandinavian union.

It is a mistake, in our opinion, to stick to this view of an enlarged Atlantic Pact. One man in Europe had the right idea in the beginning, though we have no knowledge as to whether he stuck to it: Spaak of Belgium. He wanted the original five in Europe first to unify their defense establishments—that is to say, offer a blueprint in the manner of the Paris Committee on Marshall Aid. The five are the so-called Brussels powers—Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. Except, perhaps, for Britain, not one of these powers could stand up to a Soviet aggressor, no matter how many arms it got from the United States. In this respect they would be just as much of a drain as Nationalist China proved to be. This is not a harsh conclusion; it is so acknowledged in the countries themselves. It follows that the very first business of Europe in creating the framework for the Atlantic Pact should be to create a real continentalization of defense: a continental general staff, a continental army on new-fashioned lines of organization and direction for guerilla warfare. The "association" of America and Canada with such a grouping would then have some meaning. The defense community by this method could become so strong and the sense of security so pronounced that there would follow inevitably an expansion of the community and a deepening of it.

By widening the Atlantic Pact at the outset to include Scandinavia, however the signatories would hamper the achievement of the basic task of continentalizing European defense. This is entirely apart from the danger in which such an extension would put Scandinavia. Sweden, for instance, might become another Turkey—with Soviet forces established on her frontiers and Soviet communications jutting into her side. In such an event this country might have to come to Swedish aid as it has done to Turkey's without regard to prior commitments. This could be done within the framework of the existing Soviet-Finnish treaty. For a way of solving the problem of relating a Scandinavian union and an Atlantic Pact, the diplomats might take a leaf out of the copybook of the British Commonwealth. The Commonwealth link is expressed so variously and with such a minimum of legalism as to be a model for laying the foundations of an Atlantic community.

Customs Duties

French customs officials, who want an increase in their pay, have announced that beginning February 28 they will go on strike. But theirs is to be no ordinary work stoppage. With a diabolic perversity sometimes thought to be characteristic of all customs inspectors they simply intend to enforce every last regulation to the letter, not forgetting to dot the i's and cross the t's. Unidentified authorities are said to have estimated that under this procedure full inspection of every piece of luggage will consume time on about the following schedule:

One suitcase	2½ hours
One trunk	Most all day
A woman's handbag	Weeks

This is the most devastating technique that customs inspectors could possibly devise. It calls up a vision of tourist-hungry France, with an army of travelers champing at the dock to get in, begging its customs employes not to take their duties so seriously and forced in the end to pay them more for doing less. And the effectiveness of the French customs agents ought not to be underestimated.

Back in the period of the "Phony War," so the story goes, before Mussolini took up the dagger and stabbed it in France's back, a goodwill dinner was given in Paris for some visiting Italian army officers. High officers of the French army were the hosts, and they put on a good feast. It was supposed to improve relations between the two countries and their armed forces at a most ticklish moment. But one of the Italians, a Fascist braggart to start with, drank too much wine and became insolently boastful. At some length and in a loud voice he extolled the prowess of the Italian army. When the day came, he declared, Mussolini's cohorts would move across the border and neither the vaunted French army nor anything else would stop them. In the painful silence that followed a French officer softly inquired, "Ah, but aren't you forgetting the French customs service?"

Back Of The Medal

General Vaughan was the wartime provost marshal of Brisbane, Australia; General Bradley was one of the commanders of Allied victory in Europe. Yet the President would have us believe that their cases are equally deserving of honor at the hands of Perpn's Argentina. After all, Argentina was an ally, though not till a few seconds before 12 o'clock, when she scrambled on the bandwagon. It would have been most unbecoming to deny Argentina the privilege given to all allies of pinning a medal on Bradley's chest. But why in the world is General Vaughan's service in keeping the peace in Brisbane held in such esteem in Buenos Aires? The Peronistas have no interest, of course, in Brisbane; their interest lies in the White House. It is General Vaughan's present job in the White House that persuaded Peron to dig into his hope chest for the best and an honored ribbon in the Argentine collection. This is the reason that General Vaughan got his decoration, not his wartime service.

The President knows the peacetime record of Peron's Argentina. It has been a long and sordid story of blackmailing the hungry peoples of Europe, of trouble-making in this continent, and of corruption in the grand manner. The jig is not yet up, but the end seems to be approaching. In Buenos Aires the cupboard is beginning to look pretty bleak, and there are few pickings left for the administration. That, of course, increases the scramble, and probably explains the flight of Miranda, the economic czar, who by this time must be the richest man in the hemisphere. In letting Peron plaster his military aide with a medal, the President is merely giving face to a man who has provided him with a succession of petty headaches, though perhaps he could not do otherwise so long as Congress tolerates what has come to be a racket.

German Visitors

A farsighted move is the bringing to this country this month of eight German women leaders to observe how the American system works. German women's influence on the future of Germany has been too long neglected by American occupation authorities. Both Americans and British have lagged behind the Russians in recognizing the importance of German women, who greatly predominate in numbers over men, as mothers who will shape the Germany of tomorrow.

The present group's two-month tour of this country is being paid for by the American Military Government and sponsored by the Carrie Chapman Catt Memorial Fund. The visitors, all leaders in their fields, will observe government, civic, labor, parent-teacher and other activities here. In addition, a movement is on foot among American women's organizations to sponsor a visit of possibly 30 German women to study life in the United States.

Women of Germany are carrying greater responsibilities than the women of any other nation. A large proportion of their men were killed and disabled, so that they must function as heads of families, as wage earners and as community leaders. By reason of their long domestic background and their lack of freedom, particularly under Hitler, they have not been prepared for the demands they face. The Soviet Union's answer to this has been to organize and propagandize them.

Only recently did American occupation authorities establish a woman's affairs department with a woman in charge. But in the cold war over the German woman, this country's most strategic move—one that the Soviet Union is unlikely to duplicate—is to bring influential German women here and let them freely see all of American life.

Power For TVA

In approving a new steam generating plant for the Tennessee Valley Authority, the House showed a sensible recognition of TVA's responsibility to the area it serves. Pettifogging objections raised by a few Congressmen who refuse to see anything good in TVA overlook the fact that the Authority is virtually the only source of electric power for a vast region. Arbitrary limitation of TVA's capacity would not have aided private enterprise; on the contrary, it would have penalized municipalities and industries the expansion of which has been made possible by this great source of power.

The new plant, which still needs the sanction of the Senate, will be located at New Johnsonville, Tenn., in the western part of the TVA system. It is designed to maintain a balance between hydroelectric and steam generating capacity, and in particular to firm up facilities where power is offered now on an interruptable basis. The need for increased power is general throughout the country, but it is particularly acute in the TVA area because of the multitude of new uses to which low-cost electricity has been put in rural homes as well as cities. Sales of electric power in the Tennessee Valley have increased more than 1000 per cent since the advent of TVA, and more than 20 per cent since the end of the war. The House acted wisely in encouraging rather than limiting the dynamic which the TVA has provided for a fuller life.

Lincoln Papers

This is to substantiate the surmises of David Rankin Barbee, in his letter of February 13, with regard to the letter to Abraham Lincoln from William A. Hammond, Surgeon General of the United States. The letter is dated July 16, 1862. Mr. Barbee says there is no other letter in the Lincoln papers referring to this matter, and surmises that it must have been only an item in a considerable interchange of letters and memoranda.

The immense surrounding area of activity in this connection is described in my book, Lincoln's Daughters of Mercy. The Protestants referred to were the group under the leadership of Dr. Henry Bellows, pastor of All Souls' Church (Unitarian) in New York City, and Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell, founder of the New York Infirmary for Women and Children, who were at that time initiating the United States Sanitary Commission, the parent organization of the American Red Cross. The official papers of the United States Sanitary Commission were deposited with the Astor Library in New York City. They fill something like 800 large boxes. Until I consulted them the dust that gathered on them after the Civil War had not been disturbed.

This is not the only evidence I can give to show that the Lincoln papers offer only vestiges, and frequently insignificant vestiges, of a vast complex of activity in which Lincoln was involved, and which can be substantiated from hitherto unstudied documents stored elsewhere. It is tragically evident that the real material about Lincoln is dangerously dispersed, and that too much of it has been lost or deliberately destroyed.

How Deep's The Snow?

Reading about the hazards to life of man and beast in the snowbound West, and the heroic rescue operations of civilian and Army forces is one of those pleasures agreeably mixed with pain for which I spend my nickel daily.

I have noticed, however, and my hungry imagination greedy for detail, compels me to write that no mention is made of how deep in feet this snow disaster really is.

A foot of snow blown by a gale through our Capital town would make some stir and fill our press with cuts and columns of description. Out West it's somewhat worse than this yet only an occasional photo of some oddity gets printed, and nothing but casual mention of drifts mammoth enough to bury weasels and disable 10-ton snow-fighting trucks.

How deep is the snow on Donner Pass? What does an 19-foot drift look like on the Union Pacific right of way? Get us some stories of snow-fighter crews—how they work and eat and keep warm through one blizzard after the next. The greatest snow in history should make great copy.

Civil Rights Solution

No Northerner, unless he has been South and mingled with the problem—and it is a problem—should stand in the distance and shout "equal rights down South."

You can't legislate prejudice out of existence. It is wrong, but the solution is not in passing antidiscriminatory laws alone. "Equal rights" should begin in the education department and, of course, with employment. In Washington, for instance, it is shouted that more than 70 per cent of all felonies are committed by the Negro population. But check the educational record of the miscreants, check what little chance they had, and you'll get a different picture.

Civil rights program or no civil rights program, white Americans will hem and haw about the race problem for 200 years yet. Then one day they will reach general accord—the perfect solution. They will turn around and say, "Mr. Colored Man, come over here, we have the answer to the problem—which is you." And they will wait and call again, and wait, but no colored man will appear. He will be gone—assimilated.

Hume School

It has occurred to me, since attending P-TA and civic association meetings on the Hume School controversy in Arlington, how much better off we would all be if there were no such organizations. If there were no such groups signing petitions for and against locations and pelting the school board with advice and instructions, I believe that this very board would have gone right ahead, selecting a site and seeing that a new Hume School was erected in time for the new school year.

Military Guarantee

This pretense that the United States cannot give firm military guarantees to other countries, because of the constitutional provision that only Congress can declare war, is, of course, sheer bunk. All that would be necessary would be to write into the treaty that this country will consider external aggression against our western European allies as equivalent to an attack upon American soil.

Transit Radios

During the battle of the installment of the transit radios, I waited. I read the pros and cons. The other morning I rode downtown to work, on a bus with this contraption installed. I can't speak for the other passengers, but I certainly will speak for myself.

Under normal circumstances the sound of this jazzed-up trash gives me violent indigestion. But socarly in the morning—ugh—I came to the office with a violently turring stomach, and swimming head. I couldn't concentrate on the paper.

I don't think that any fairly well-educated person can take this sort of noise for as long a time as it takes the buses to go downtown in the morning, or in the evening to go uptown. It usually takes 45 minutes from the Munitions Building to Euclid st. Now with this blasted radio going—I think I'll buy myself some ear stoppers so I don't hear anything.

Plight Of The Irregular Air Carriers

The Civil Aeronautics Board's current proposal to tighten regulatory restrictions on irregular air carriers has attracted extraordinary attention because of the drastic effect which the new regulation is expected to have on these enterprises. They are now fighting for their very lives, and therefore must indeed welcome the request made last week by a group of Senators that the board delay further action until the Senate Commerce Committee has had "opportunity for full study of the matter."

Although there is some reason to believe that more basic change in policy is under consideration by the board, the presently proposed changes in the regulation governing irregular carriers seem designed largely to enforce compliance with the existing provision that air common carrier services must be entirely of an irregular nature in order to be exempt from certain types of economic regulation.

By far the most important economic regulatory provision from which the irregulars are exempted is the certification requirement, which is pre-eminently a means of protecting existing operations by the exclusion of new competition which is expected substantially to affect the revenues of existing services. If the irregular air carriers present "different regulatory problems" from those of the scheduled companies, it is apparently because really "irregular" services do not represent a serious competitive threat to exasting scheduled services.

Furthermore, there is direct evidence that the carriers now operating as "irregulars" would be only too happy to comply with the same kind of economic regulation as is now applicable to the scheduled carriers, if they could obtain certificates authorizing regular service. Applications for such authorization made by these carriers have simply not been acted upon by the board.

The basic question is whether the revenues of the certificated airlines should be preserved by means of forcible exclusion of new competition. Because protective regulation tends to prevent the initiation of new competitive services before they can prove themselves, concrete evidence of their benefits in regulated industries is seldom available to the public. The resourcefulness of the nonscheds in evading legal restriction has in this case provided such evidence. Not only has a whole new market for air travel been served at the lower rates offered by the irregulars themselves, but their competition also has stimulated the scheduled carriers to experiment with "coach" service and low off-peak rates enabling better utilization of equipment.

Apart from the obvious short-run private interest of the certificated airlines in quashing new competition, forcible protection of their revenues may be argued for on grounds of public interest in two ways, both of them highly questionable morally as well as economically. First, it may be said that the non-scheds "skim the cream" from the airline business by operating only on high-traffic routes and failing to serve intermediate or other points originating little traffic. But this is only to say that the less profitable services should not be required to bear costs rightfully attributable to them; that passengerr on heavily-traveled routes should bear a part of these costs in the very real sense that these passengers could be served at lower rates if the "weak" operations did not have to be carried along by them.

Second, it may be argued that diversion of revenues from the certificated carriers will increase the liability of the Government in the form of mail payments which must cover larger deficits, and that forcible restriction of competition is thus necessary to conserve Government funds. Essentially, this argument proposes that part of the cost of the Government support program be shifted to the would-be consumers of the low-rate competitive service, who must either patronize the certified lines or stay on the ground.

The latter argument suggests that an inquiry into the nonscheduled problem should not be limited to economic regulation alone. As long as the extent of Government to air transport is determined by the revenue needs of particular carriers, there will be a strong tendency for Government officials to restrict both new competition and competition between existing lines in order to reduce the direct cost to the taxpayer.

Children Of The One-Sixth

By Malvina Lindsay

'Baby Bonus' Issue

THE FACT that some people have the money and the others the babies continues to plague the Nation. It is now bringing into wider discussion the question of Federal family allowances for the rearing of the record number of small children the war and postwar years produced.

This is one of the controversial matters over which the 1950 White House Conference on Children, for which country-wide preparation is now being made, will have to deal. There will be others—the relation of housing, taxation and unemployment to the rearing of children. For the time has passed when conferences on child welfare can deal only in vague, noble platitudes.

The family allowance issue has already been raised by Miss Katharine F. Lenroot, chief of the Children's Bureau. She recently told the National Commission on Children and Youth, which is planning the White House conference, that this country should "consider" setting up a system of family allowances. She pointed out that the United States was the only major industrial nation in the world that did not provide such allowances.

With more than half of this country's children being supported by fewer than one sixth of families, with regions rich in children being poor in income, with child labor on the increase, more mothers at work, more children homeless (partly because of the "No children or dogs" renting rule), Miss Lenroot warned that concrete action for better child care could not be delayed.

HER pronouncements were reminiscent of some of the unpleasant facts of child life that Miss Grace Abbott, former head of the Children's Bureau, brought into the abstract atmosphere of the 1930 White House Conference on Children. Bess Furman in her recent book, Washington By-Line, graphically describes that famous conference, which, called by President Hoover and prepared for by 1200 leading child experts, was to mark a new era in the welfare of the American child. But the conference bogged down in controversy and ended with a long, lofty and vague 19-point statement (with (a) and (b) subdivisions) on the rights of the American child.

As Miss Furman tells it, unemployment, which had become a political issue, was injected into the conference by Miss Abbott's demand that something concrete be done about the unemployment of children's fathers so that children could be taken out of breadlines. At that time banks were closing and unemployment had become front-page news. Miss Abbott specifically recommended that the machinery of mothers' aid laws be used to carry relief to children of the unemployed. She argued that mothers got aid when their husbands were sick or died, so why not give this when the fathers' wage-earning services were cut off by unemployment?

This led to an unsuccessful effort to clip Miss Abbott's wings by transferring the maternal and child health function of the Children's Bureau to the Public Health Service. The conference was so torn by this fight that it did not get around to much concreate action for children.

THE COUNTRY has come a long way in its thinking about governmental responsibility for employment and social welfare in the 19 years since that conference. The one that meets next year will find economic and even political issues dogging it on all sides as it attempts to work out a program to bring greater opportunity to the children of one sixth of the Nation. It may even run up against the unemployment bugbear again. Family allowances are bound to be on its agenda, also probably the question of greater income tax exemption for families with children.

In fact Congress may possibly antedate it in dealing with some of these issues. Increasing interest is developing in this country in the operation of family allowances in Canada, which has probably the broadest program of any nation. In effect since 1945, this applies to all families, rich and poor. These are now receiving on an average $13.28 monthly for assistance in child rearing.

Studies of the system in countries that have had it a reasonable length of time indicate it has little effect on birth rates. Its biggest influence on population seems to be in cutting down children's mortality as the result of better care and feeding. So far, Americans have generally opposed what is popularly called the "baby bonus." But eventually they may have to choose between it and other forms of direct aid for the millions of children who happen to be born in families and localities poor in income.

Washington Calling

How Not To Catch Spies

DURING World War II intelligence reports out of enemy Germany were often amazingly accurate. At times the most secret plans of Hitler and the Nazi high command were transmitted to London.

Childs

The chief reason was the extraordinary network of professional agents developed by the British intelligence service in Germany through the years. There was also the fact that many courageous Germans, hating the Nazis and all they stood for, risked torture and death to try to send out vital information. As a British cabinet member expressed it to me in a conversation in London during the war:

"Why shouldn't our intelligence out of Germany be good? Some of our agents are the third generation of the same family working for us."

That is to say that German grandfather, father and son were each in turn British agents. That is the achievement of a professional intelligence system which, when all the romantic nonsense is stripped away, is a dirty, mean, secret business that most governments regard as necessary at the present level of human development.

In releasing the hitherto secret Tokyo spy report the Department of the Army seemed to me to show a basic confusion. Spies are not caught by whipping up public fear and suspicion. Counter-espionage, the business of blocking and defeating spies planted by an enemy or a potential enemy, is also a highly professional job in which amateurs are likely to do more harm than good.

THE AUTHORS of the Tokyo spy report express admiration for the Canadian spy inquiry and the report that came from the Royal Commission. But the two documents could hardly be more unlike. The Canadian report consists largely of testimony given by witnesses before the commission, with conclusions stated briefly and unemotionally.

The report from Tokyo made public by the Department of the Army is based on second-hand and unverified sources, chiefly the statements of convicted German and Japanese spies prior to their execution. It is written in a florid style with highly editorialized comments about official United States policy.

The American Army officers who put together the Tokyo document apparently felt it was their mission to arouse the public in this country to a sense of danger. After the Canadian report, with its grim and unmistakable warning, that hardly seems necessary.

In fact, it has positive dangers. The impulse in many State Legislatures is to create local legislative committees to hunt out subversive activities. Such committees are likely to go on their hunt with even less discrimination and caution than the House Un-American Activities Committee in Washington and thereby they may do great injustices without contributing to the national security in any practical or direct way.

AS THE Canadian report made abundantly clear, Soviet Russia has a head start in the spy business. Within the Communist parties in each country are fanatical individuals who have transferred their loyalties to Soviet communism and who engage in espionage not for pay but out of devotion to the fountain head of communism in Moscow.

But even apprehending this type of spy seems to me to be a highly professional undertaking, which should not be entered into by those unable to distinguish between disloyal acts and thoughts which may be outside the accepted and conventional pattern. As we are fond of proclaiming to the world, freedom of thought and freedom of expression are two qualities that distinguish ours from a totalitarian society.

A fascinating and little known book, The Fourth Seal, by Samuel Hoare, describes the British secret service mission in Russia in 1916 and 1917. Hoare (now Viscount Templewood), the head of the mission, relates how all government departments in Russia under the Czar had their own espionage services which often devoted most of their time to spying on each other.

He tells of the "cover" he used in obtaining information and he also ventures to give a thumbnail sketch of the director of Britain's world-wide secret service. Even though that director had long since retired, the author is careful not to give his name.

The professional intelligence service is reported to have been shocked by these indiscretions which violated the strict code of secrecy. According to one report, most of the edition was bought up by the secret service and it is today almost impossible to obtain a copy. In other words, in the view of the most successful secret service in the world, this is a professional business which must be kept strictly within professional confines. That is a lesson some American officials would do well to learn.

Anti-Red Bill Gets Support In Maryland

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 18 (AP).—The Senate mobilized for a legislative attack on Maryland Communists today by giving tentative support to a crackdown on subversive activity.

Without opposition, the Senate adopted a report of its judiciary committee approving the Ober commission's anti-Communist bill.

One amendment, proposed by Attorney General Hall Hammond, was added.

This makes clear the right to appeal of a public employe discharged on suspicion of disloyalty. He could demand a jury trial and take his case all the way to the Court of Appeals.

Before backing the judiciary report, Senators decisively voted down another amendment by which an attorney general could refuse to appoint a special assistant in charge of the law's enforcement.

Hammond has said he does not think the job belongs to his department. Instead, he has suggested creating a "super State's attorney" or a new State police position.

Senator T. F. Johnson (D., Worcester) proposed changing only one word—to "empower" rather than "direct" the attorney general to name a special assistant "in charge of subversive activities."

Thus the attorney general would have an authority he would not be required to exercise.

Senator McLaughlin (R., Washington) called the bill "the most important we will have before us this session."

The measure, which must still win final approval in the Senate and go to the House, where a duplicate has been introduced, would do this:

Imprison and fine persons who promote overthrow of the government by force; require loyalty checks of public employes and school teachers; order constant grand jury investigations of Communist activity.

County Seeks To Learn Fire Tax Powers

By a Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 18.—Montgomery County representatives in the general assembly will move Monday to determine what lawmaking powers the county council has over fire taxing areas.

Two bills on the subject will be presented in the House of Delegates Monday, delegation members disclosed today. When they are referred back to the delegation, the attorney general will be asked if the legislature or the county council should enact the bills.

The constitutional amendment relating to charter governments reserves for the legislature those laws referring to "special taxing areas," but there is a question whether an area that merely collects a tax for a specific purpose such as those relating to fire taxes and departments comes within the scope of this delineation of powers, members of the delegation said.

If the attorney general rules that the bills should be handled in the Assembly, they will be carried through the routine, but will be withdrawn if he rules in favor of the county council.

One bill provides for extension of the Cabin John Park Volunteer Fire Department fire tax area. Another provides authority for setting up a retirement system for paid firemen of the Bethesda Fire Department. A third bill bestows power upon the county council to include in the county retirement system any employes of semipublic agencies such as fire departments and public libraries supported in part or in whole by taxation. The agency involved would have to make the request.

The delegation also will introduce a bill increasing the pay of judges of the Orphans Courts to $18 a day with a maximum of $2500 a year. The judges now receive $15 a day with an $1800 annual maximum. The increase brings the court in line with Prince Georges County salary scales, delegation members said.

The Prince Georges delegation is submitting a bill to increase the fire tax levy in Riverdale from 5 to 10 cents, starting in 1950.

Small Potatoes

By Mark Sullivan

Why The Big Ones Are Missing

IN The Washington Post a while ago appeared a plaint from a reader. It was about potatoes. Her letter, part of it omitted here, read:

"We used to be able to go to market and lay in very fine potatoes. But for the past three years that has been practically impossible. What the farmers are doing with their potatoes is a mystery."

Calling my attention to this, a lady of my acquaintance said the housewives among her friends complain of the small size of the potatoes they get in the markets. She wondered why. I was unable to enlighten her. I could only surmise that maybe some condition of the weather last year made potatoes small.

Presently I ran across the answer. It was in an announcement of the Department of Agriculture, dated February 7, about the department's potato price-support program for the coming year. The department's program generally, and its purpose of keeping up the price of potatoes, are fairly familiar. But this announcement contained a surprise.

PRICE SUPPORT not only makes prices higher but potatoes smaller—that is, the potatoes which housewives find in the market are smaller because of the way price support worked last year. This is explained by the department's recent announcement, with a manner of confession. It says it hopes to manage next year so that more big potatoes will get to housewives.

The department has had two prices. For big potatoes (No. 1 grade) it paid growers $2.92 per hundred pounds. For little potatoes and inferior ones (No. 2 grade) it paid only $1.46.

As a result of the two-price system—so the department states with obvious chagrin—"the department was compelled to purchase and divert into other than normal commercial channels large quantities of top quality, top price potatoes."

That is where some of the big potatoes went that housewives could not find in the market. That answers, as to big potatoes, the plaint of the lady who said, "What farmers are doing with their potatoes is a mystery."

When the department says it bought top quality potatoes and sold them to "other than normal commercial channels," it means manufacturers of starch or alcohol or the like. In some cases the department sold top quality potatoes as feed for livestock. (Incidentally sales of potatoes for livestock were accompanied by a stipulation that the purchaser—I here quote Senator Williams of Delaware who did not like the practice—"will not allow any of them so purchased to be used for human consumption.")

THE TWO-PRICE system made it profitable for farmers to divert their small potatoes to household consumers, and tended to keep big potatoes from them. How it worked is intricate, but can be found in the Department of Agriculture's announcement. "Complying" farmers—that is, farmers who had agreements with the department to limit their acreage and otherwise abide by department regulations—these sold their big potatoes as a matter of course to the department at the price support figure, $2.92. "Noncomplying" farmers could get approximately the price-support figure in ordinary markets, since the effect and purpose of the whole price support system was to make prices of all potatoes high.

As to small potatoes, the case differed, though to the same effect. The price of these in ordinary markets tended to be higher than the $1.46 price-support figure which the Department of Agriculture would pay for them. Consequently these were not sold to the department. The whole two-price system tended to divert small potatoes to household users, and keep big potatoes from them.

All this is more than a mere case of housewives being, as one of them put it, "fed up with small potatoes." It is a matter of the highest public importance. Here are two facts. Price support made prices of potatoes to consumers high. And price support obliged consumers to buy lower grade potatoes. And here then is a question: Is price support justified in the public interest?

Tuck Assails Grants-in-Aid As U. S. Threat

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—Gov. William M. Tuck of Virginia spoke out here tonight against extension of Federal grants-in-aid and declared "a sound economy is essential to stable government.

"Some have long appeared totally oblivious of that fact," he observed in commenting on the possible results of greater extension of Federal aid to the States.

The Governor made his statements at the thirty-ninth banquet of the Traffic Club of New York.

He has been a frequent critic of Federal spending and of what he tonight called "the bait of Government largess," which he said, "has had a tendency to weaken the moral fibre of the individual citizen and undermine the strength of the national character.

"Associated with political promises of great public expenditures is the tendency for branches of the national Government itself to encourage the people to look to it for 'free' money."

"I am proud to be able to stand before you and report that we in Virginia have consistently resisted this trend. We have insisted on a balanced State budget. We have sought particularly to leave no impression with the people that we can offer them through Government something for nothing. On the contrary, we have emphasized that the addition of any service or the expansion of an existing one will involve the question of more taxes, which they themselves must pay."

Bank Accused Of 'Sabotage' Foreclosure

Publishers of a foreclosed newspaper in Montgomery County, the Montgomery Independent Standard, charged in a $65,000 damage suit yesterday that banking officials had "conspired to sabotage" the business.

Defendants in the action, filed in Montgomery County Circuit Court, Rockville, are Citizens National Bank, Takoma Park, and its officers. Among the officers are Oliver W. Youngblood, until recently a county commissioner, and J. Douglas Bradshaw, a county Councilman.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Musser, publishers of the former newspaper, first daily ever published in the county, argued that bank officials "suddenly without any cause or reasonable motive" withdrew financial support.

Claiming assets of "more than twice the amount of actual delinquency," at the time of the foreclosure July 2, 1947, the Mussers charged the bank "lulled the plaintiffs into a false sense of financial and economic security."

Bradshaw, the suit declares, threatened the plaintiffs with "immediate seizure of all clothing, furniture, automobiles and other personal belongings" unless the plaintiffs agreed in writing to waive their legal rights.

Informed of the action, Bradshaw branded it as "nonsense." He denied any "threats" and said the bank had seized none of the Mussers' personal property. He added that the bank lost $1800 after the foreclosure.

Surry Corrects Negro Schools, Report Says

Richmond, Va., Feb. 18 (AP).—Surry County has corrected or is correcting every inequality cited by lawyers for Negro plaintiffs in a school equalization suit, the county's school officials have advised the Federal District Court.

In a 10-page report, signed by Commonwealth's Attorney Ernest W. Goodrich, the Surry officials answered point by point 13 exceptions made by the plaintiffs to the Surry School Board's first report of equalization progress filed last September 15.

At a conference of counsel with Federal Judge Sterling Hutcheson last month counsel for the plaintiffs indicated they would ask for a contempt citation against the school officials if the second report failed to satisfy them. Yesterday was the deadline for filing of the report.

Changes Listed

In it the school officials reported these measures to comply with a Federal Court order to equalize Surry's Negro schools with those for white pupils:

1. The Negro high school at Dendron has now been fully certified by the State Board of Education; has fulfilled all accreditation requirements, but can't be put on the board's accredited list until the requirements have been in effect one year.

2. Library facilities, laboratory equipment, janitorial service, transportation and courses of study in Negro schools now are equal to or better than those in schools for whites.

3. Teachers' salaries are being equalized in accordance with instructions by Judge Sterling Hutcheson except that no steps have been taken to equalize the salary of the principal of the Surry County Training School (Negro) with that of the principal of the Surrey high school for whites.

Heating, Sanitation Improved

4. Sanitary lavatories and adequate heating facilities have been provided in all schools. All Negro schools except three unconsolidated elementary buildings have electricity.

5. Equipment for vocational agriculture instruction at the white high school is "better" than that for the Negro school, but "shops in both schools are adequate in every respect for instruction in the courses offered."

6. The school board has received preliminary plans and a cost estimate for a new combination high school and elementary school for Negroes that "will not only equalize facilities but will provide Negro children with facilities far superior to those provided for the white children.

Educator Favors Federal Aid to School Students

Pittsburgh, Feb. 18 (AP).—Earl James McGrath, President Truman's nominee as United States Commissioner of Education, today declared he favored Federal aid to schools from kindergarten to college.

Visiting the University of Pittsburgh where he will address faculty and administration members tonight, McGrath explained he spoke only as a private citizen as his appointment awaits Senate confirmation.

"Take the G. I. bill," he said. "We've had some wonderful students, top-notch people, who unquestionably would not have got an education without that help. There is a growing sentiment for public scholarships."

Palestinian's Right to Sue Is Contested

Can a citizen of a mandated country bring a suit in a Federal court of the United States?

This question arose yesterday in United States District Court in Alexandria, where Leo Klausner, a resident of Israel, is suing Albert Levy, 108 W. Rosemont ave., Alexandria, for $52,949. The suit is concerned with the dissolution of a business in Berlin 21 years ago which involved both men.

Litigation has been going on since 1938, but the case first came to the Alexandria court March 29, 1948. Yesterday's action was argument on a motion to dismiss, sought by Levy, who according to the suit is Klausner's nephew by marriage.

Levy argued that Klausner at the time of filing the suit here lived in Palestine, which was a mandate of Great Britain. Since Klausner was not a citizen of an independent state, Levy claimed, he cannot bring a case into a Federal court in this country.

Klausner's attorneys replied by citing a treaty signed by the United States and Britain shortly after the first World War. V. R. Vallance, a legal adviser to the Secretary of State, testified that the treaty authorized Palestine to grant citizenship. This would make Klausner eligible to file the suit, his lawyers asserted.

Judge Albert V. Bryan asked for a brief from Klausner's attorneys supporting their argument.

Navy Captain Reprimanded

lic relations officer at the Eleventh Naval District in San Diego until yesterday.

Rear Admiral B. H. Bieri, 59, who was commander of the Eleventh District until he was promoted about three weeks ago to the post of naval consultant for the United States at the United Nations.

Senator Harley M. Kilgore, 56 (D., W. Va.), who was in the Army in World War I.

Sequence of Events

The sequence of events was this:

Senator Kilgore, on a visit to San Diego last summer, suggested that the Mexican border town of Tijuana be declared out of bounds to enlisted men to save them from venereal diseases.

Admiral Bieri argued that closing the border was not the answer, that the real solution to moral living lay in proper education campaigns.

Admiral Bieri's promotion and transfer came through.

A San Diego newspaper reporter in Washington asked Senator Kilgore two weeks ago about the change in Admiral Bieri's status.

Senator Kilgore did not exactly say that the admiral was kicked upstairs because of their difference of opinion, but he did observe to the reporter that the admiral departed from San Diego after the controversy.

Captain Explodes

A reporter in San Diego relayed Senator Kilgore's statement to Captain Dierdorff, who exploded:

"It's a shame that the career of one of the finest Navy officers I've ever known has to be slurred by a politician not fit for the Aadmiral to wipe his shoes on."

Captain Dierdorff's argument—a correct one, as it turned out—was that Admiral Bieri had been slated for the promotion long before Senator Kilgore ever visited San Diego.

The next day Captain Dierdorff wrote a letter to Senator Kilgore, explaining that he was really mad at the newspapers and, in effect, apologizing to the Senator. The Senator by this time had a clipping of the story. Three days ago he forwarded both clipping and letter to Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan without comment. Captain Dierdorff's reprimand and the order relieving him from duty came yesterday, four months before he was to have been retired.

It was "just a San Diego story" until Ray Henle, National Broadcasting Company commentator, aired it in a broadcast Wednesday night.

Yesterday some phone calls were made to find out how Senator Kilgore and Capt. Dierdorff felt about things now.

"I never wanted him fired," Senator Kilgore said. "I never talked to the man and never met him. All I know was what was in the clipping and the letter. I do think, in view of what happened, that he is not the man for a public relations job. That's what causes trouble sometimes—taking a combat man and putting him in a job for which he's not suited. His letter wasn't entirely an apology. It was more an explanation that he was really mad at the newspapers. No, I never sent an answer to him. I just sent all the stuff over to the Navy."

Captain Dierdorff, reached by telephone in San Diego just after he had turned his job over to his successor, turned out to be that rarity of public figures—a man who doesn't claim he was misquoted after something he has said has got him in a jam.

"I've been in the Navy for 34 years," he said. "The Navy has backed me up to the limit when I have been right. It has been most kind to me in adversities that I've suffered. It's still the swellest Navy in the world and whatever it does is all right with me. I mean that.

"If I stick my neck out—and I did—I am man enough to take it. I had no right making a remark like that about a public servant. When I heard that Admiral Bieri's transfer had been attributed to this other controversy, when, in fact it had actually been slated for a long time, it just completely burned me up and I stuck my neck out. But it's still the swellest Navy in the world.

Captain Dierdorff's record is an imposing one. The last enery, however, will be a reprimand unless the Navy reverses its position.

The captain holds the Navy Cross, the Legion of Merit, gold stars in lieu of the second and third Legions of Merit, the Croix de Guerre with silver star from the French government, the bronze Oak Leaf Emblem (Great Britain) and a letter of commendation from the Secretary of the Navy.

AMA Leaders Rebuke Doctors Who Protest $25 Assessment

Chicago, Feb. 18 (AP).—Leaders of the American Medical Association today sharply criticized 136 physicians who last week protested a $25 AMA assessment to fight compulsory health insurance legislation.

The association leaders' reply said that "the circulation and issuance of the doctor's protest is an unfortunate disservice to the cause of the medical profession of the United States.

"It is not based on knowledge or fact as to the policies or activities of the American Medical Association."

The rebuff, signed by all the officers and directors, was published in the current journal of the AMA.

The 136 physicians signed a statement which said in part that if the $25 levy on AMA members is "to be used for propaganda and legislative lobbying instead of developing a comprehensive medical care program, we are heartily opposed to the levy and shall refuse to pay it . . ."

"Education" Plan Proposed

The AMA statement said purposes for which the assessment fund is to be spent have been published and that "this fund is not for lobbying, nor in any way a slush fund."

The money will be spent, the officers and directors said, chiefly for "education of the American people as to the present high quality of medical service in our country, as to the inevitable deterioration, as shown in other countries associated with a governmental system of medical care, and also to accelerate in every way possible the enrollment of people in voluntary hospitalization and medical care plans."

The AMA announced a 12-point program for extension and improvement of medical care last week. The program calls for a Federal department of health, headed by a medical doctor with cabinet rank.

Meanwhile, the AMA program to combat compulsory health insurance swung into gear today with the mailing of directives to State campaign chairmen and secretaries of State medical associations.

The campaign is being directed by the public relations firm of Whitaker and Baxter.

Clem Whitaker said the chief objective will be to stimulate grassroots awareness of the public "of the creeping paralysis of bureaucratic regimentation of the people's lives."

He criticized Oscar Ewing, the Federal Security Administrator, whom he called the "patent medicine man" for a "deliberate attempt to hide from the people the true cost and social consequences of the scheme of socialized medicine which he is proposing."

AMA officials declined to comment on the action last Tuesday in which the Kings County (Brooklyn) Medical Association voted 861 to 755 to protest the $25 assessment of AMA members.

Has No Comment

Baltimore, Feb. 18 (AP).—Dr. Edwards A. Park, a leader of 136 physicians protesting an assessment to fight compulsory health insurance legislation, said today he would have to study a rebuff from officers of the American Medical Association before answering.

Dr. Park, a Johns Hopkins professor emeritus, was one of five doctors who signed a letter accompanying a statement protesting a $25 levy by the AMA.

Study on Standardized Communications Asked

The National Securities Resources Board yesterday asked leaders of the communications industry to study the problem of standarizing the radio, telegraph and telephone equipment used by the various armed forces.

The question was raised at a meeting of 31 industry representatives, military officials and civilian government agency spokesmen who were called together by the board to help draw up mobilization plans for any future M-day.

Truman Congratulates First Israel President

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday sent "heartiest congratulations" to Dr. Chaim Weizmann upon his election as the first President of the state of Israel. The message released by the State Department said:

"I send you my heartiest congratulations upon your election as first President of Israel. You have my best wishes for a happy and successful administration."

Hospitals Called 'Living Hells'

Baltimore, Feb. 18 (AP).—A special investigating committee set up by the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union reported today that three of Maryland's State mental hospitals are "living hells."

The report was filed with the Baltimore Federation of Labor. It urged local unions and their members to "put pressure on the Legislature by means of letters, cards and telegrams to take such steps as are necessary to correct these deplorable condition."

Ruth Murray, Henry Wernr and Leroy Griffin made the investigation. They said Springfield State Hospital has a 1328 patient excess, a shortage of 250 employes, and that patients are "fed in a manner more like animals than humans."

"Even worse conditions," they said, "exist at Crownsville State Hospital, and Spring Grove is no better than the others."

Neighbors Enjoy Ingram Canteen

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

Saturday night is canteen night for boys and girls who live near Ingram Congregational Church, 10th and Massachusetts ave. ne.

For a total expenditure of a dime the kids can join in a full evening of sports, classes, movies and dancing at the church.

The weekly canteen was launched a year ago by three members of the church, Jack Daiker, a University of Maryland instructor; Larry DeAtley, a District government accountant, and his wife, Betty, who works at the Church Book Store in the Woodward Building.

On the first night of the canteen, February 8, 1948, 27 boys and girls attended; on the first anniversary night there were 220. Only a few of the kids who attend are members of Ingram church, for the canteen is a neighborhood affair and members of every faith participate.

Age Limits Removed

At first the canteen was limited to children over 10. Small brothers and sisters of the teen-agers wanted to join in the fun; and tots of five and six solemnly told the staff they were 10 so that they could get in, Mrs. DeAtley said. As a result, the age limits have been removed.

The canteen opens at 7 p. m. and the early part of the evening is devoted to classes in art, singing and individual or team sports. The basketball team, which has captured 16 games in a row, plays teams from other churches and boys from the neighborhood. Next year it hopes to join a league.

One of the most popular activities is a cooking class at which the youngsters make cookies to sell for a penny each. Mrs. DeAtley said the girls hardly have a chance to get near the class because the boys have such a good time in it. Before the cooking starts, there is a scrub-up period to help the kids learn the value of clean hands for food handlers.

Refreshments at Cost

At about 8:30 there is a break in the routine which gives the boys and girls a chance to get a coke and hot dog before seeing a cartoon and chapter in the weekly serial movie. Refreshments are sold at cost.

From 9 until the canteen closes at 10:45 p. m. there is dancing for the older boys and girls and a full-length feature movie for the younger ones. Because most of the children have church affiliations, religious films are seldom shown at the canteen.

The Rev. H. R. Phelts, pastor of the church, is an enthusiastic supporter of the Saturday night activity and acts as "door man," collecting the 10 cent admission fee, which pays for film rental and equipment. The church donates use of its space and facilities, and gave funds for purchase of some of the canteen equipment.

Staff of Eleven

A staff of 11 supervises the canteen. Some of the staff are church members, others are friends of members who started out helping in a specific activity, and became so interested that they come each week.

The founders and staff members of the canteen wanted to give the children of the neighborhood a chance to have a good time on Saturday nights without getting into mischief. The growing attendance and popularity of the canteen is adequate proof to them that the venture has been a success.

Oxnam Will Accept Churchman Award

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—The editor of The Churchman, unofficial Protestant Episcopal weekly, said last night that attempts have been made to get Methodist Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam to refuse the magazine's 1949 award.

The Rev. Guy Emery Shipler, the editor, said a "police group" publishing the anti-Communist magazine, Counter Attack, went to Bishop Oxnam personally and tried to persuade him to turn down the award, but he refused.

"They picked the wrong guy," Shipler said.

Former Secretary of State George C. Marshall last year refused to accept The Churchman's award on grounds the magazine concerns itself with international affairs as well as church matters.

The award is presented annually "for the promotion of good will and better understanding among peoples."

Shipler said Cass Canfield, chairman of Harper & Bros., publishers, had resigned from the committee in charge of the award next Wednesday night.

Shipler also announced that Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.) has sent word he will be unable to speak at the dinner, as scheduled.

Shipler said certain groups have "been trying to get everybody to withdraw" from a list of 500 "very distinguished" sponsors, but with no success, except possibly in the case of Canfield.

Bishop Oxnam, head of the Methodist Church in the New York area, announced that he "certainly will" attend the dinner.

"All I ask anyone to do if he thinks it (The Churchman) is a 'Red' paper," said Shipler, "is to read it. We haven't any politics. We have never taken any political position except in the case of Al Smith—we defended him against the attacks that were made against him."

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower accepted the magazine's award in 1946. Other recipients include President Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 18 (AP).—Virginia Democrats probably are in for heavy helpings of politics even before they sit down tomorrow night for the $25-a-plate Jefferson-Jackson dinner and a speech by Vice President Barkley.

Three of the four Democratic gubernatorial candidates have quarters lined up in the John Marshall Hotel to bid for the favor and pledges of support of the party faithful in town to hear the Vice President.

The only one of the four Democratic hopefuls in the race for Governor who will not be on hand at the dinner is Francis Pickens Miller of Albemarle, the avowed anti-organization candidate. He passed up the dinner in favor of the national Jefferson-Jackson dinner in Washington next week. However, some of his supporters were expected to be on hand in his behalf.

The three candidates who will attend are State Senator John S. Battle, and Remmie L. Arnold, Petersburg manufacturer.

Governor Tuck will return from a New York engagement tomorrow in plenty of time to confer with other party bigwigs and be on hand to introduce the Vice President at the 7 p. m. dinner.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

THEY'RE THROWING a night for Bob Feerick, the Caps' captain, at Uline Arena this evening, and high time, too. For three years now he's been Washington's Mr. Basketball.

This fellow, Feerick, is the reason, in fact, that there is a big league basketball team in Washington. And the chief reason, also, why Washington's basketball team is the best in the business.

POVICH

The Caps weren't even a gleam in the eye of Promoter Mike Uline four years ago, and he had never heard of Feerick. But down at Norfolk, Va., at the Naval Base, Red Auerbach got an eyeful of a handsome young sailor on the basketball court and drooled for the day when the war would be over and he could organize a team that would include Feerick.

Auerbach talked to Feerick, then to Uline and promised to deliver a Feerick-led team to Uline Arena. Thus the Caps came into being, with Auerbach concerned first about getting the basketball player he wanted and then persuading Uline to underwrite a franchise in the pro league.

IN FEERICK, the Caps weren't getting any green pea. For three years, ending in 1941, he was voted on the All-Coast All-Star college teams while playing for Santa Clara. On the Coast he was the hottest hombre since Hank Luisetti, the All-Time All-American. He even had Luisetti's one-hand set shot nicely plagiarized.

Feerick had as much to do, if not more, in assembling the Caps' team as did Auerbach who took the job as coach. He tipped Auerbach on Freddy Scolari, another Californian, whom he vowed couldn't miss in pro ball, and who hasn't. And he persuaded Dick O'Keefe to join the Caps.

Feerick even had a hand in signing Bones McKinney for the Washington team. He played against McKinney in the service and wanted him on the same club with himself. McKinney was on his way to Chicago to sign with the Stags when Feerick and Auerbach intercepted his train in Washington and signed him to a Caps' contract between beers at Union Station.

ON THE WASHINGTON CLUB, Feerick is the man with the ball. He's content to let Joe Fulks and George Mikan set all the scoring records, and he's a Bones McKinney fan when the clowning McKinney steals the applause. Feerick confines himself to playing the best basketball in the league, making the clutch shots, and generally attending to the business of keeping the Caps far in the league lead.

He's the Caps' leading scorer, and that is the more remarkable because he also leads the club in those important assists that precede a goal from the floor. The fan who wanted to break down the contributions of such high scorers as Fulks and Mikan would probably come up with the evidence that they trail their teams in goal-assists.

But when Feerick does set himself for a shot, he concedes nothing to any man. He still holds perhaps the most important record in the scoring books. That was his feat of sinking 40 per cent of the shots he took in the 1946-47 season. Mr. Efficiency he is called called by Publicist Joe Holman who used to manage winning basketball teams himself.

THEY'LL CALL him onto the court between halves tonight for the formal presentation ceremonies, but that wasn't the original plan. The bow he is to take was scheduled as a pregame feature to beat the risk that the Caps might be trailing by halftime when the fans might be in sour mood. Feerick himself vetoed that plan. "It's up to us to get out in front," he said.

Feerick pulled the most sensational shot ever witnessed in Washington a couple of weeks ago when he bamboozled the New York Knicks by cutting loose what looked like a wild pitch at the backboard. He raced in to grab the ball before it rebounded to the floor, and he had an easy lay-up shot. It was no accident. Just something he'd been practicing.

Around the league they have the proper appreciation for Feerick's talents. Les Harrison, the coach of the Minneapolis Lakers, was saying the other day: "On George Mikan's good nights he'll score more points than anybody in the league, including Fulks, but the league's best basketball player every night is Bob Feerick."

It's Feerick Night as Caps Meet Bullets

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Bob Feerick has his night at Uline Arena this evening and if he makes it a big one the Caps are likely to mow down the Baltimore Bullets.

Some 6000 basketball fans will converge on the Arena to pay tribute to Feerick, hoping to see him and his Caps exact the same from the Bullets.

Despite the fact the Bullets have shot down the Caps three straight times, the Uline shotmakers are 6½-point favorites to win this evening and wind up their regular season's play against their intercity rivals with a 3-3 record.

Feerick, all-BAA guard for two consecutive years, was sadly off form in the three Cap reversals, but feels he'll be back in the groove for the big moment of his pro career this evening.

"If I can be anywhere near as good against Baltimore as I'm told the fans will be to me, we're a cinch to win," remarked the 29-year-old Cap captain.

Eight games ahead of the second-place New York Knicks and 10 games in front of the third-place Bullets, a Cap loss wouldn't seriously crimp their hold on first place. Another defeat by the Bullets, however, would add credence to the belief that the Bullets do have their number.

Jeannette Has Answer

Buddy Jeannette, dynamic player-coach of the Bullets, theorizes that his team has beaten the Caps "because we've been able to hold down either Feerick, Bones McKinney or Fred Scolari.

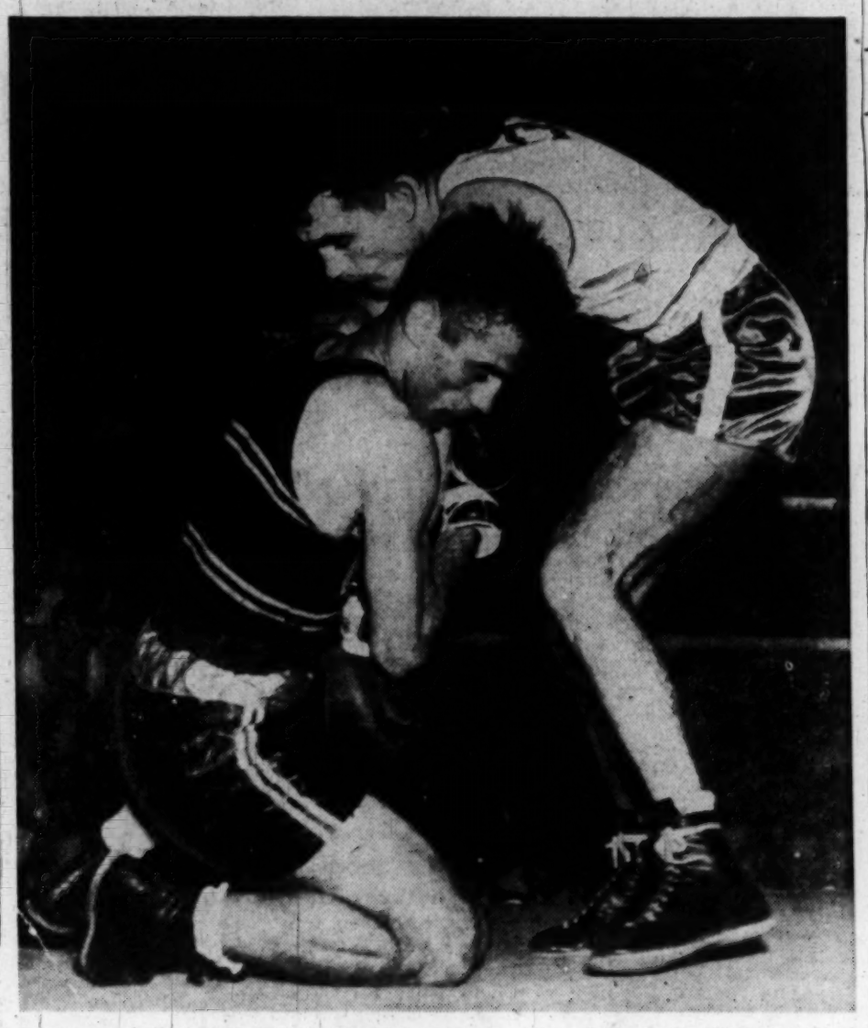
"When we stop one, the other two must carry his burden and so far neither has done it."

Be that as it may, Cap Coach Red Auerbach plans to give Jeannette another chance to prove his theory. "Feerick, Scolari and McKinney will play as long as they can go," Auerbach countered. "The Bullets haven't stopped them—they've simply stopped themselves, but they're ready tonight."

Helping that trio along in the starting array will be Kleggie Hermsen and either Dick O'Keefe or Sonny Hertzberg. Johnny Norlamder and Black Jack Nichols will be tapped for first line reserve duty.

Connie Simmons, the 6-foot, 8-inch center, is the guy the Caps must gang up on tonight. He's averaged 20 points against them and dropped in 28 in Baltimore three weeks ago when the Bullets made it three in a row.

In the fray with Simmons will be ageless Jim Pelkington, whose chief duty will be to shadow Bones McKinney



ONE AT A TIME, BOYS—Paul Kostopoulos, Maryland lightweight, didn't like the idea of being knocked down by Pat Dougherty of Michigan State last night and tried to pull the Spartan lightweight down with him. Kostopoulous took an eight count in the second round, but got up and won the decision from Dougherty. Maryland won the match, 5½ to 2½, at Ritchie Coliseum

Lions Beaten By Flyers, 11-1

The powerful St. Louis Flyers moved into second place in the Western Division race last night as they manhandled the Washington Lions in an American Hockey League match on Uline ice, 11-1.

A slim gathering of 1125 persons saw the local pros absorb their twenty-first reversal in their last 22 starts.

Pat Wilson's payoff shot in the third period presented a shutout for Ralph Almas, St. Louis' goal tender.

Fusari Upsets Castellini

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—Charlie Fusari, blond Irvington, N. J., slugger, upset favored Rocky Castellani, boxing's 1948 rookie of the year, to win a unanimous 10-round decision tonight in a close, furious battle at Madison Square Garden.

Fusari scraped himself off the floor after taking a three-count knockdown in the first round, to grab the nod over the pride of the hard-coal regions by the closest of margins.

Catholic Wins, Maher Upsets Citadel Star

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Billy Maher, clever Catholic University 165-pounder dealt The Citadel's Dale Matthews the first ring defeat of his life last night to lead Catholic University to an impressive 5½-2½ victory before 3000 enthusiastic spectators at Brookland.

Matthews, 19-year-old son of veteran Coach Matty Matthews and Southern Conference champion, had a streak of 22 consecutive collegiate victories. He never had lost a fight in a school and in five years of Golden Glove competition.

Maher, 21-year-old soph, clearly won his fight with savage in fighting. Matthews had a slight edge in the first round but started showing the effects of Maher's body blows in the second. At the end, Dale was a tired fighter.

It was Catholic's third straight team victory. Previously Eddie La Fond's battlers beat Georgetown and Syracuse. The setback was the first for The Citadel in four engagements including a 5-3 win over Maryland.

Bucky Ennis, spectacular 155-pounder created most of the excitement before Maher scored his unexpected triumph. Ennis flattened George Campsen with a wicked right in 1.14 of the first round, his second consecutive first round K. O.

Tom Cronin, 125-pounder, and Johnny Redmond, 130, each notched his seventh straight win in getting C.U. off to a good start.

Actually, the Cardinals' margin should have been greater. Capt. Cal Nisson, 145, floored Timmy Wiggins in the first round and appeared to have won easily, but the fight was ruled a draw.

Cliff Sisler, 175, added a bout for insurance when he staged a furious third-round rally to decision Bob Erdrich. Sisler floored Erdrich in the final round.

Heavyweight Charley Rohr, conqueror of Syracuse's Marty Crandall, was outpointed by Bill Ohlandt. The latter, also a Southern Conference champ, gave away 22 pounds.

SUMMARIES

125 POUNDS—Tom Cronin (CU) decisioned Harry Hitopoulos.
130 POUNDS—John Redmond (CU) decisioned Harold Shokes.

Savold Bests 'Deadline'

New York, Feb. 18 (U.P.).—Bill Daly, manager of Heavyweight Lee Savold, beat Joe Louis' Monday "deadline" tonight by announcing that Savold was willing to meet Ezzard Charles in a Challengers' battle on two conditions.

Those conditions were: (1) Thaat Charles must beat Joey Maxim impressively in their Cincinnati fight on February 28, and (2) that Louis must put up a forfeit of $50,000 guaranteeing a June title defense

McKinley Coach Says He'll Protest Vikings' 'Illegal Conference'

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The defending champion Central Vikings outlasted McKinley Tech, 30-22, yesterday at the Armory in the dramatic nightcap of a doubleheader which cleared the way to the on-schedule beginning of the playoffs Tuesday.

The loss effected Tech's elimination from playoff contention, and paired Wilson against Coolidge and Central against Eastern in the playoff openers at the Armory.

In the first game, which had no important effect on the standings, first-place Wilson dropped its first game in nine league starts, 38-30, to Eastern.

That Central-Tech game was one of the most tense and deliberate of Interhigh history, and was climaxed in the third quarter when Tech Coach Dutch Usilaner announced to the officials that his team would finish the contest under protest.

Central's star pointmaker Jimmy Pantos set the stage for the rhubarb, when he drew a foul while driving in for a shot under the basket. Pantos limped over toward the sideline where he was met by his coach, Gabe Ferazzi. The two exchanged brief words, and Pantos returned to the foul line.

Usilaner leaped to his feet, and demanded that a technical foul be charged against Central for what he termed an "illegal conference." Officials Bucky Buscher and Orrel Mitchell maintained and Orrel Mitchell maintained that Pantos had 10 seconds to do what he wished before shooting his foul, and they refused to call technical.

After the game, Usilaner wrote out a formal protest which he said he would forward through Tech Principal Charles Bish to Hardy Pearce, director of the Interhigh League. Pearce indicated that he would veto the protest.

The game itself was a flashback to the "good old days," when the defense glowered at the offense, and each waited for the other to move.

Tech won the opening jump, and for seven of the next eight minutes while the crowd of 1000 howled, Bob Curtis, Ray Brady and Tony Sgro of the Trainers passed the ball leisurely among themselves. They were waiting for the Central defense to move but it wouldn't so the Techmen continued to pass and play keep away.

Just before the end of the quarter, Pantos streaked in picked off an errant Tech pass, and dribbled in for the first field goal of the game. Two minutes into the second quarter, Central held a 2-1 lead.

Pantos stepped up the tempo moments later, when he broke through for two more goals. But Tech stayed in its shell and went out a halftime, trailing, 12-10.

In the second half, Central reversed the strategy, and decided to play "keepaway." The Vikings froze the ball for three minutes, and then began to cut aand break, and took a 20-17 advantage into the last quarter.

Again Central changed its pace, slowing up, and holding the ball. For a while, Tech, on defense, refused to be baited and laid back. Once Pantos held the ball for 10 seconds without a hostile move being made against him. At last, he scratched his ear, and passed the ball.

In the closing minutes, Tech gambled, trying to grab the ball, but succeeded only in committing eight fouls, and being outscored 10-5.

Tech's kingpins in their heartbreaking defeat were pivotman Don Dunlap, who scored seven points, and Tony Sergo, who set up the Trainer's early freeze. The irrepressible Pantos scored 17 for Central to scoring honors for the day.

Eastern's unexpected victory in the first game, was negotiated with surprising ease. Wilson was way off its game, anad Eastern's Dyer brothers, Teddy anad Franny, and Jim Atchison ran the Tigers ragged.

Glass Beats Champion as Terps Win

Al Glass, a freshman student but anything except a novice in the ring, led Maryland to a surprising 5½ to 2½ decision over Michigan State by defeating Ernie Charbonneau, the Spartans' national featherweight champion, last night.

Glass' stunning triumph over Charbonneau easily highlighted the eight-bout card which attracted a standing room throng of 5800 to Ritchie Coliseum.

The Spartans' other national titleholder — welterweight Chuck Davey—had a much easier time—and assignment—than Charbonneau. Davey, three times NCAA champion, was awarded a third round TKO over Maryland's Barney Lincoln, a willing, but outclassed youngster.

Gives Maryland Split

The victory of Glass, a Baltimore GI who boxed in the Navy, wasn't as decisive as it was stunning. Referee Billy Williams and Judge Charlie Reynolds voted for him, but the other official, Judge Joe Bunsa, called it a draw. Neither Reynolds' nor Williams' card was solid for Glass, each giving him two rounds and one to Charbonneau.

The victory was Maryland's second against a like number of defeats. The Spartans, meanwhile, received their third lacing of the season against only one victory.

The Glass-Charbonneau fight was a thriller from start to finish. Charbonneau did the leading, but the classy Glass countered with sharp jabs and occasional but damaging right crosses.

He spun Charbonneau around in the first round with a right to the head and in the second round he repeated, just after Charbonneau had tagged him with a good right to the head.

Rieder Winner

Sensing, perhaps, that he had to score a knockout to win, Charbonneau tried to land the clincher in the final round, but the clever Glass stepped out of the way and neatly sprayed him with jabs to earn the nod.

Davey, a southpaw with a sharp punch, peppered Lincoln from the very start until Referee Williams halted activity after 41 seconds of milling in the final round. Davey drew blood from Lincoln's nose as early as the first round and landed a continuous barrage of rights and lefts on Lincoln's head and face until the fight was stopped.

Eddie Rieder, Maryland's Southern Conferencve 155-pound champion, and State's Chuck Sirhal hooked up in a wild slugfest for three rounds with Rieder winning the decision.

125 POUNDS—Al Glass (M) defeated Ernie Charbonneau.
135 POUNDS—Paul Kostopoulos (M) decisioned Pat Dougherty.
155 POUNDS—Eddie Rieder (M) decisioned Chuck Sirhal.
175 POUNDS—Sonny Grandelius (MS) defeated Bob Smith.
HEAVYWEIGHT—Mont Whipp (M) and Art Hughlett drew; bout halted in first round when Whipp was cut on forehead.
Final score: Maryland, 5½; Michigan State, 2½.

Entries Near 1000 a Day Pace In Post Benefit Pin Tourney

The third annual Washington Post bowling tournament appears headed for a record field.

The tournament, being held in cooperation with the Metropolitan Washington Duckpin Operators' Association for the benefit of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club and nearby county boys' activities, already has attracted more than 3600 entries through the first four days.

Julie Singer of Greenway, handling all the entries from 27 alleys, and "Hap" Newman, Chevy Chase Ice Palace manager, cochairman of the event, yesterday called on managers and floor men working closely with the Women's Auxiliary of the Police Boys Club, to "go all out in the hope that their dream of 15,000 entries might be realized."

The best evidence of how well received The Washington Post Tournament is, comes from Colonial Village, where the Diamond Cab League of 20 teams, through the efforts of Official Scorer Stanley Howard, came through with a 100 per cent entry of 96.

Colonial Village already has enrolled some 350 entries. It was over these mapleways that Louise Lowe, of the Office of Chief Engineers League, scored a brilliant 360, 60—420.

Penn Recreation, with Lou Kramer presiding, continues to have hot scoring, and has more than doubled its entries of any previous year—354. Jack Palmer of Government Accounting Office, poured out a 433-51—484; Izzy Rosenbloom, of Plaza Sport Shop League, 418-45—463; J. F. Feeney, also of GAO, a 422-54—476; Gene Brown, of Intersorority League, 313-87—400, and Marion Groves, also of the same loop, 283-111—394.

Howard Valentine, of Eig's in the National Capital League, has 412-48—460, and Bob Reid, 403-36—439, both at King Pin. At Petworth, Ralph Read scored 383-48—431 with the Petworth Commercial; Martha Beach, of Lutheran Ladies, 324-84—408, and O. H. Lettman, of Lutheran Men's, 356-96—452.

Helen Bowen, of Argyle Club League, reported a 316-111—427 at Bethesda Bowling Center, while Lafayett's top scorers were J. Van Doren, 382-72—454, and Victor Beauchamp, 342-87—429, of the Intercollegiate Alumni League, and Murray Poling, of Coast and Geodetic Survey, a 349-75—424.

Chevy Chase Ice Palace continues to show the way with more than 700 entries while Hi-Skor has close to 600.

Entry fee is 50 cents—one half going to the prize fund the other half to the Police Boys Club. There are prizes for men and women, with scratch for former 128 and for latter 118. Full handicaps prevail.

Episcopal JVs Win

Leland Junior High won yesterday's city-wide junior swimming championship at the Eastern Branch Boys Club pool. Leland scored 65 points, Boys Club, 43, St. John's, 18, Ambassador, 17, and Takoma, 13. Al Hobelman paced Leland by scoring 10½ points.

Sparked by Dick Tetlow's 15 points, Gaithersburg High defeated Poolesville, 42-38, last night at Gaithersburg. The winners boast a 10-2 record.

60,000 May See $100,000 Race Today

Arcadia, Calif., Feb. 18 (AP).—Explosive Olympia and his stablemate, Ocean Drive, hold dominating roles in the twelfth edition of Santa Anita's $100,000 Derby tomorrow.

Fourteen colts — there isn't a filly in the crowd—were named today to battle over the mile and one-eighth route for a purse that will gross $141,800 and bring a net award to the winner amounting to $94,700—both record sums for the Santa Anita Derby.

Here's the lineup, in post position order, and take your choice: 1. Old Rockport; 2. Ocean Drive; 3. Bolero; 4. Hayseed; 5. So La Ci; 6. Stone Age; 7. Black Fox II; 8. Admiral Lea; 9. Count Victor; 10. Pedigree; 11. Audacious Man; 12. Duplicator; 13. Olympia; 14. Swap Out.

Coupled as twin-threats are Olympia and Ocean Drive, owned by Fred W. Hooper, Jr., of Montgomery, Ala., and Mrs. John D. Hertz's Count Victor and So La Ci.

Olympia, with Jockey Willie Garner aboard, remained the top favorite off his wire-to-wire win over a Derby field in the $50,000 San Filipe Stakes two weeks ago. Stablemate Ocean Drive, winner in a one-two finish with Olympia in Florida's Hibiscus Stakes just prior, ran a disappointing fifth in the San Felipe.

Writer Thinks Joe's Condition Could Mean Pennant to New York

By Red Smith

New York, Feb. 18 (NYHT). As gag pictures go, the photo in today's papers showing Casey Stengel gazing into a "crystal" baseball was pretty fair Golden Bantam.

Trick lights and shadows rutted Casey's comely kisser like a detour on Highway 40, and those low-comedy features were twisted into an expression of ghastly horror, as though he'd just seen a Bearden. Which, the chances are, he had. So would any other American League manager who looked into the future.

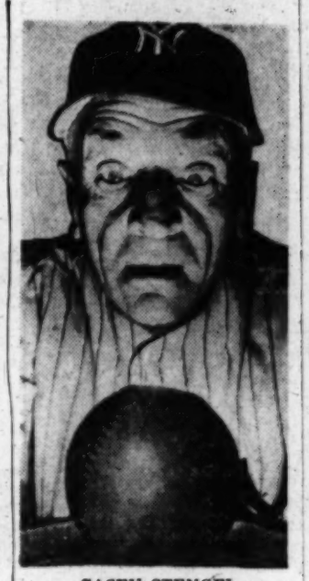
Looking over the field now before the clubs start for training camp, you've got to like the Cleveland Indians. Even though they had to have a recount to get the World Series election last fall and granting that Boston's bedraggled Braves could have whipped them for the world title as well as not, the Indians still look like the ball club of 1949, not to mention 1950 and thereafter.

To be sure, they cannot reasonably expect Ken Keltner, Lou Boudreau and Joe Gordon all to enjoy another season as successful as last. But deterioration there should be more than balanced by improvement of Gene Bearden, Bob Lemon, Jim Hegan, Allie Clark, Dale Mitchell and Larry Doby, all youngish fellows of merit.

BOB FELLER must be considered a twenty-game winner until proved innocent. The gauge of his mechanical greatness is the fact that he took a salary cut the other day after winning nineteen games, a mark which hundreds of competent major leaguers never reach once in a lifetime. You've just got to like a ball club with a Feller, a Bearden, a Lemon, an Early Wynn and a Steve Gromek on its pitching staff.

A year ago the Cleveland club hadn't begun to jell. In fact, the only reason Cleveland had a club at all was that Bill Veeck had failed in his valiant efforts to trade it away. This year, starting with a team of established champions, the Indians could run off and hide by August 15. And then again, they might not.

Chiefly because silence hurts his ears, Veeck has shouted that the Yankees are no better than a fair third-place club. Maybe he's right. But the notion here at this moment is that New York has the club most likely to upset the favorite. Analysis shows how easily it could happen.



CASEY STENGEL
He sees a Bearden?

When Stengel succeeded Bucky Harris as the Yankee manager last fall, all the pundits agreed that he would have to rebuild the team. This public acknowledgment was a good break for Casey because it implied that if his employers didn't bring him important new talent and the Yankees didn't win, their failure wouldn't be the manager's fault. It ignored the fact that the manager was blamed for the failure of 1948—if you call it failure to lose out one day before the season's end.

OFF THE FORM established in last year's race, the Yankees could win with no more rebuilding than a five-year-old could do with his erector set. And that means the Yankees as they were in September, with Joe DiMaggio dragging a dead leg behind him, Charley Keller on the bench, Spec Shea and Snuffy Stirnweiss staggering under a burden of suet.

Page won the pennant in 1947. Not so much by winning 14 games for himself—as compared with 7 last year—but by going in there 56 times and putting out the fire day after day after day. It was his relief work which kept the pitching staff sound in 1947.

Last year he worked almost as often as he had the season before. One day he'd look like the superlative stopper of 1947. Then there'd be two or three important games when he couldn't get anyone out.

TRYING TO POINT out the Yankees' troubles, the experts mentioned Shea's decline. There is jubilation in the office now because he has kept his weight down this winter. There is rejoicing over Stirnweiss's flat waistline, over the encouraging medical reports on Keller, over DiMaggio's physical condition. There should be, too, but none of these was the key factor last year.

In 1948 Vic Rasche and Bob Porterfield took up the slack when Shea sagged. In spite of all other difficulties, the Yankees would have been good enough to win, if they had had one dependable relief pitcher.

sound, Shea and Stirnweiss in

With DiMaggio and Keller condition, they might be plenty good enough to win this year, again provided they had that stopper in the bullpen.

So, while it's gratifying to hear favorable reports on the others, the big question remains: how's Joe Page? The answer to that question could be the Yankees' answer to Bill Veeck.

But Cleveland Still Rates Best With Youngsters Figured to Improve

Hoyas, GW Play Tonight In Philly

Georgetown and George Washington, basketball doubleheader buddies, team up again tonight in Philadelphia's Convention Hall where they meet La Salle and Temple, respectively.

In fact, with a mass exodus of District teams, Catholic U. has the local scene all to itself, meeting Randolph-Macon in a Mason-Dixon Conference engagement at Brookland.

American U., setting a sizzling 10-2 pace in the M-D, travels to Baltimore U., a team over which it already holds a decision.

Maryland and South Carolina, both fighting to keep alive slim hopes for Southern Conference tourney bids, clash at Columbia, S. C. The Terps trounced South Carolina, 79-49, at College Park recently and then embarked on a three-game Conference victory streak. Since it's been snapped by North Carolina, 66-52, and Georgetown again stopped Flucie Stewart's club. Maryland's Conference record is 5-5.

Strong Muhlenberg meets Navy at Annapolis.

GW and Georgetown both will be underdogs in Philadelphia tonight with the Colonials conceded a better chance of winning. The Hoyas face a La Salle team that has ambitions for a post-season tourney bid with its impressive 17-4 record.

La Salle, led by 6-foot-8 Larry Foust, trounced Penn, 64-44, and Manhattan, 76-46, in its last two outings. Georgetown recently dropped a 56-53 decision to Penn. Strange thing about La Salle's record is that one of its four losses was at the hands of Temple by a convincing 54-36 count.

George Washington takes a four-game winning streak, longest of the season, into the Temple game. Josh Cody's Owls who have won 14 of their 20 starts, are undefeated against Southern Conference opponents.

Temple downed Duke, 59-45, and Wake Forest, 56-47. GW squeezed past Duke, 51-49, and lost to Wake Forest in an early season upset, 50-38.

Fla. Governor After Bookies

Tallahassee, Fla., Feb. 18 (U.P.).—Gov. Fuller Warren today ordered county law officers to arrest all bookies in Florida.

In the first such move in this State, where illegal bookmaking is a multi-million dollar business, Governor Warren ordered sheriffs, constables, State beverage inspectors and the hotel commission to begin an immediate crackdown to "halt the stealing of State taxes" by bookies.

Florida levies an 8 percent tax on legal betting at its 17 horse and dog racing tracks. Pari-mutuel handles have fallen off at all tracks despite the largest mid-season tourist rush in the history of the State.

Last year the State drew $13,531,680.90 in racing revenue. The State's share so far this season has been $5,889,534.39, a 6.88 percent drop from the comparable period of last year.

Warren said 300 "bookie joints" are operating in one county alone, obviously Dade County where Miami and Miami Beach are located. Hialeah race track now in operation there reports its attendance up over last season but its betting handle down about 5 per cent.

"The States loses $8 on every $100 illegal bet with bookies," he said. "If bookies are allowed to continue to swindle the State of racing taxes, all citizens may be burdened with additional taxes to replace the lost revenue."

7 Foreign Olympians Compete For AAU Track Titles Tonight

New York, Feb. 18.—Olympians from seven foreign countries will compete with more than 300 track stars of the United States in the sixty-first annual AAU championships at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Belgium's Gaston Reiff is the man to beat at three miles and his principal challenger is Erik Ahlden of Sweden. In the mile, Holland's Willy Slykhuis is top-heavy choice. Foreign threat in the 1000 is Marcel Hansenne of France.

Georgetown University's mile relay team is expected to wage a terrific duel with New York University. In two races, the teams have split with NYU turning in a 3:20.2, believed to be the fastest time this year.

In the afternoon the national high and prep school championships will be held in the Garden. Bob Mathias, 18-year-old Olympic decathlon champion, threatens to turn them into a one-man show.

Boys High of Brooklyn will defend its team title in the high-school division. Cardozo High of Washington, D. C., switching from the prep to high this year, is considered the principal challenger.

Terps Track Hosts

Somewhat of a preview of the 1949 Southern oCnference track championships will be staged at the University of Maryland tonight.

Seven of the 11 teams entered in Maryland's second annual invitation indoor meet are members of the conference. In addition to the host they are North Carolina, Duke, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Washington and Lee, Virginia Military Institute and North Carolina State.

The "outsiders" are Navy, Catholic U., Georgetown and Virginia.

Cold Wave Eases Threat of Floods

Chicago Feb. 18 (U.P.)—A cold wave from the north eased the the threat of grave floods in the snow-burdened West today.

The cold came to the rescue of the Pacific Northwest, where heavy rains and warm weather had started a rapid runoff down the slopes of coastal mountains.

The cold front moved down from the Dakotas and other north central States and was due to spread over Iowa, Wisconsin, Nebraska and Kansas.

North Dakota reported that wind and snow threatened to ground planes flying feed to hungry livestock in isolated areas. Bus schedules were disrupted west of Bismarck.

Maj. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, commander, said the storm situation has been brought under control in the four-State disaster area of Wyoming, Nebraska, South Dakota and North Dakota. He said his bulldozers were ready to cope with the new cold.

In Washington, the Labor Department reported that the prolonged western storms since January 2 had cost 2 per cent of cattle on the ranges and 5 per cent of sheep.

Wrecking Job Delayed By Tenant

A wrecking crew preparing to tear down an old three-story Alexandria house which partially collapsed three weeks ago was held up in its work yesterday morning when it found the house still occupied.

Charles Mills, 52, had been living in the house at 306 N. Fairfax st., he said, ever since the south exterior wall collapsed January 30. His daughter and her five children had been staying with various friends, Miles said, but he had stayed in the house because he had no place to put his belongings.

Murray T. Shipp, head of the wrecking firm which tore the brick house down yesterday, said "only fate" had held the house together He pointed out that the west wall had bulged outward a brick's width in places.

Miles said he still had no place to put his furniture except in a friend's unlocked shed. His daughter's family will stay in one room of a friend's house nearby, he said, and he will try to find a room for himself.

$22,500,000 Asked For Emergency Work

By The Associated Press

Secretary of the Army Royall wants Congress to appropriate $22,500,000 for emergency work to be carried out if floods should sweep the West as a result of the winter's heavy snows.

He asked Budget Director Frank Pace, jr., to approve the item. It is based on a survey by Army Engineers.

Fund to Buy Shrine Still $45,000 Short

The sum of $43,000 is still needed from the general public to pay for the purchase of the Fairfax County estate of Woodlawn for a national shrine.

This was disclosed yesterday by Armistead B. Rood, secretary of the Woodlawn Public Foundation, Inc. Rood said the foundation has collected $79,000.

Rood said the foundation "firmly plans" to take possesion of the estate Tuesday, Washington's birthday, in a ceremony at the estate.

"We plan this step," he said, "on the assumption that we shall be able to negotiate temporary debt financing for the amount by which our cash available on Monday fails to meet the full purchase price."

Hearing on the proposed sale will be held Monday in Fairfax County Court, which has held up the sale for five months to give the foundation a chance to raise the money.

Woodlawn, which George Washington gave to his adopted daughter Nellie Custis as a wedding gift, is on Route 1 just north of Fort Belvoir.

'Horseburger' Ring Rounded Up In Indianapols

Indianapolis, Feb. 18 (U.P.)—Police broke up a "horsemeat hamburger" syndicate today and arrested 13 men for violating the State pure food and drug law.

Officials said the horsemeat had gone to hundreds of taverns, small restaurants and small groceries.

Mules, horses and ponies were ground and mixed with beef suet, a cereal filler and an illegal preservative in a concrete mixer.

Tavern Manager Fined $100 in Slot Machine Case

Julius Richards, manager of the Palo Alto tavern in Bladensburg, yesterday was fined $100 and costs for permitting operation of a gaming table there.

Richards, who pleaded guilty and was fined by Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie in Upper Marlboro Police Court, was arrested January 29. Police testified they saw him hand $8 in quarters to a patron who "hit the jackpot."

Richards' counsel told the court that the tavern manager had taken the money from the cash register and handed it over after the customer, during an argument, demanded payment for winning on a pin-ball machine.

Justifiable Homicide Ruled In Man's Death

A verdict of justifiable homicide in the death of Yancey Brinkley, 47, listed by police as living at 5219 G st. ne., was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury.

Brinkley, according to police, suffered a fractured skull February 11 during a fight with George Washington Lynch, 19, of 1841 9th st. nw., at 1523 22d st. nw., where both were employed. He died Thursday in Gallinger Hospital.

Witnesses testified the two men got into an argument over who would use a nail on which to hang clothing. They said Lynch struck Brinkley with his fist when the latter reached into his pocket as if to draw a weapon.

R-2 West End Shuttle Bus Line To End Feb. 27

District Public Utilities Commission yesterday authorized the Capital Transit Co. to discontinue shuttle bus service on the R-2 West End line between the District's two fringe parking lots effective February 27.

The route will revert to its previous terminals of 25th and E sts. nw. and the Treasury Building, 15th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

The Merchants' Parking Service, operators of the lots at 25th and E sts. nw. and 3d st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., who previously decided to end the fringe lot operations March 20, moved the date up when it was learned bus service could be curtailed earlier.

Autopsy Set on Man Who Collapsed in Cell

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald will perform an autopsy today on the body of Bernard Jordan, 45, of 1335 C st. se., who collapsed in a police cell Monday and died yesterday in Gallinger Hospital.

According to police, Jordan was arrested on a drunk charge Monday night and placed in a cell at the Fourth Precinct Station house. About an hour and a half after his arrest, Jordan's cellmate heard a thud, apparently from Jordan falling. Jordan was removed to the hospital in an unconscious condition. He never regained consciousness.

Correction

A houseboat at the foot of Queen st., Alexandria, pictured in The Washington Post Thursday, was not one of the boats which the Alexandria grand jury asked on Wednesday be closed or moved.

The foreman of the grand jury stated yesterday that the only houseboat on the riverfront in the northern end of the city referred to in the special report is located just north of the intersection of Oronoco and N. Union sts.

Italian Film Plods Through A Plot the French Do Better

"FOUR STEPS IN THE CLOUDS," an Italian film at the Pix, has the same sort of story the French do often and well. This time the Italians have not—repeat not—pulled it off.

It's that yarn about the pretty country girl who goes to the big city and finds that, though unwed, she's about to become a mother. She meets an amiable chap who agrees to pose as her husband to her righteous relatives and gets himself into an uneasy scrape so doing.

The trouble with the picture is that it's maddeningly slow-paced, a leisurely quality that does not have the redeeming feature of subtle humor. The situations of crowded trains and buses, of the poseur's virago of a wife, of his dullish life and of the fine gentle folk one finds dwelling in the countryside, are all too obvious.

There is a redeeming feature in an intelligent ending, with the true facts slipping out, the girl's family accepting the situation and the make-believe husband going back to his monotonous life. This slice-of-life attitude is helpful, but it by no means saves the laggard whole.

Adriana Benetti is charmingly restrained as the heroine and Gino Cervi has an appealing role in her face-saver. There are English subtitles for the Italian dialogue.

Lean New Tarzan But Same Shrew

By Richard L. Coe

I CAN'T TELL YOU how upset I am about the way Jane Tarzan is treating her husband.

The Tarzans—Jane and Ug—are at the Metropolitan in their latest adventure, appropriately titled "Tarzan's Magic Fountain." Jane is again played by Brenda Joyce, but there's a new Mr. T., one Lex Barker, young enough to be corpulent Johnny Weismuller's son and lending, believe it or not, an air of distinction to the ape man. He's the most Ivy League Tarzan ever, an Arrow Collar ad clad only in loincloth.

But Jane, I regret to say, is fast turning into a frightful shrew. She distinctly thwarts her husband's splendid moral code, leading some strangers to a fountain of youth against his specific wishes and getting into all sorts of horrid little scrapes of her own making.

In fact, Jane seems to be representing American matriarchy in the heart of the jungle. As you know, she's a tidy treetop keeper, indeed. I don't doubt there's more than a trace of "Craig's Wife" in her. Here Tarzan's gone and given her every chance to be a happy, carefree soul and gosh-darned if she isn't behaving like a housewife from South Bend. She gets bothered when ants crawl over her sleeping torso and she sounds like a creep at a cocktail party, when drenched in a flood more or less of her own making, she cries, "We've got to get out of here." And her dread of growing old sounds like a speech at a cosmeticians' convention.

Blue Blood Tarzan

Frankly, I don't see how Tarzan puts up with it, especially with the sensible Cheta on tap. Although I don't get Cheta's lingo, Tarzan seems to understand the chimp and at least he can count on her utter faithfulness. Surely there must be some herbs or well in the jungle that can turn Cheta into a beautiful human being for Tarzan to crush in his lean, sinewy arms.

Yes, the new Tarzan, this Barker chap, is the lean, young sort, which should be a Good Thing for the Tarzan series. The Weismuller Tarzan was getting a bit thick in the hips, pasty in the face, and the move to a younger ape man seems smart. His vocabulary suggests he's been taking some correspondence courses and a noble forehead and high cheek bones indicate that here is a Tarzan of pedigree. He doesn't rub it in, but he's obviously a blue blood. (Yes, and I'm a snob!)

Everything else looks about the same, but as I say I think Jane ought to remember that in the jungle Tarzan knows best. By her willful selfishness she's threatening their idyllic marriage.

MAIL ORDERS are now being accepted at the Arcade Theater, Hyattsville, for the new stock company's first production, "John Loves Mary," starring filmland's Guy Madison . . . The plans now are to open on Tuesday, March 8, as a benefit for the Red Cross . . . Price scale for seats runs from $1.20 to $3.60.

IN BRIEF: The Warner and Ambassador seem to be sticking to a new opening day, Tuesday . . . Washington's Birthday will bring to both theaters Alan Ladd's first Western, "Whispering Smith" . . . The Warner neighborhoods that don't normally list matinees will be putting them on for the First President's birthday . . . "Enchantment" is slipping into its ninth week at the Trans-Lux, a record of some sort, but not for downtown Washington . . . The Little's 13 weeks of "Jennie" holds that . . . The Children's Theater of Washington will repeat "Rackety-Packetty House" this afternoon at 2:30 at Roosevelt High, with final showings set for next Friday night and Saturday afternoon . . . Today's arrival at the Hippodrome is a double bill from J. Arthur Rank, "Take My Life" and "Caravan."

Budget Bureau Gets $1,652,000 Deficiency Bill

Nearly Half of Sum Required for Care Of D. C. Residents At St. Elizabeths

A request for $1,652,000 to meet District government deficiencies in the current fiscal year has been forwarded to the Federal Budget Bureau by the Commissioners preliminary to submission to Congress.

Almost half of the amount in the deficiency bill is to meet payments for care of District residents at St. Elizabeths Hospital. A daily average of 4950 persons are cared for there at a recently increased rate of $4.15 a day.

Gallinger Hospital, $272,000, to meet costs of increased number of patients and rising food, fuel and medical prices.

Department of Corrections $115,000, to pay for additional population at institutions and food cost. Present daily average is 2790 inmates.

Central Garage, $80,000, installation of a one-car elevator to permit use of upper story for repair purposes.

The remainder is for settlement of various judgments and claims against the District government incurred during the present fiscal year.

New Anxiety Neurosis Test Is Described

Dr. David Wechsler, chief psychologist of the Bellevue Hospital in New York, last night outlined a new "two-minute" test to determine the amount of anxiety neuroses present in a patient.

At initiation ceremonies founding the George Washington University Chapter of Psi Chi, national honorary fraternity, at the Kennedy-Warren Hotel, 3133 Connecticut ave. nw., Dr. Wechsler said his method had proved "reliable" in more than 2000 tests.

The determination of the amount and type of anxiety is established by interpretation of quality of a pencil line drawn between two dots. The patient draws the line while looking into a mirror that reflects his movements and shows him the nature of his efforts.

From the character of the line, heavy, light, wavy, or zig-zag, Dr. Wechsler bases his opinions as to the cause and extent of the anxiety neuroses. The measurement is based, he said, on the theory that anxiety has a mechanical effect on the body.

Initiation of the 22 charter members was followed by a bannquet and Dr. Wechsler's address. Dr. Thelma Hunt, university alumna and executive officer of the psychology department, was elected first honorary member of the chapter.

Purse Theft Suspect Loses Office Race

A suspected purse thief was collared yesterday after a merry-go-round chase in the Pan-American Building.

It started when Miss Estrella Descartes, 28, of 4413 Fessenden st. nw., a secretary in the Public Information Division, returned to her office and found her purse open, her wallet missing.

"Must be going," mumbled a man in the office, he left abruptly with Miss Descartes at his heels.

At the front entrance, the stranger found the revolving doors locked. They were being cleaned.

He raced up the front stairs, then down the rear stairs and bowled over a janitor. Back up the stairs he went and down another flight of front stairs.

A 70-year-old candy concessionaire tripped him but he got to his feet and ran into the patio. After three laps around the patio with seven pursuers at his heels, the winded stranger ran into the basement where he was cornered.

According to police, he then tossed the wallet to the floor. Police identified the man as Louis Thigpen, 33, of 633 Anacostia ave. se., and charged him with petty larceny.

Miss Descartes, a native of Puerto Rico and sister of Sol Louis Descartes, treasurer of the Island of Puerto Rico, said the wallet contained $11 in bills, a silver dollar and personal papers.

Fines Against Tax Evaders Are Suspended

Two Prince Georges County businessmen—a florist and a tavern keeper—yesterday were fined $600 each in Upped Marlboro Police Court for failure to make returns on the Maryland sales tax.

The fines, however, were suspended on recommendation of Assistant State's Attorney Hervey G. Machen. He told Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie the two offenses were the first to come before a police court in the county and that restitution to the State had been made.

The defendants were Arthur Charron, a florist of 5205 Baltimore ave., Hyattsville, and Albert Silverstone, operator of a food and on-and-off sale liquor establishment in Upper Marlboro. Both pleaded guilty.

Each was charged with six counts of failing to hand over money collected as a sales tax to the State Comptroller.

In suspending the fines, Judge Bowie placed Charron and Silverstone on 12 months' probation. He also warned that future cases of this nature would be dealt with more severely.

Machen told the court the two cases would be the last in which the State's attorney will recommend suspended sentences.

Suitland Pupil

Bus Driver Absolved in Girl's Death

The driver of a Prince Georges County school bus that killed a 7-year-old girl January 28 was cleared yesterday of manslaughter and reckless driving charges in Upper Marlboro Police Court.

Acquitted was Raymond H. Schultz, of Clinton, Md., a veteran of 11 years as a school-bus driver. The charges were lodged against him after the death of Doris Shepherd, of 207 Randolph rd., Morningside.

According to testimony, the girl, a student at Suitland Elementary School, was one of about 35 children who alighted from Schultz's bus about 4 p. m. in Morningside.

After chatting with one of the pupils for a few minutes, Schultz drove the bus off with a few children still in it. He halted the bus about 150 feet away when they told him the girl was lying in the road.

Alexandria Borrowing Plan Approved

Alexandria City Council yesterday approved a plan to borrow from banks as much as $700,000 with which to operate the city until real estate taxes come due in May.

The council, which had given preliminary approval Tuesday to the plan as requested by City Manager Nicholas A. Colasanto, stipulated that Colasanto inform the chairman of the council's finance committe in writing whenever he negotiates a loan.

Colasanto said he intended to borrow $300,000 within the next few days, from which will be paid a $200,000 bank note due Wednesday. The note represents debts of several years standing, Colasanto said.

Montgomery Delegates Deny Opposing Bicounty Planning

Phillip J. Austensen
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 18.—The Montgomery County delegation to the General Assembly today flatly denied a charge that it has introduced legislation aimed at "destruction of bicounty planning."

The accusation was made yesterday by J. Bond Smith, general counsel for the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission. He said the Montgomery County Council, in asking for legislation to transfer functions of the commission to the county government, acted "not in the public interest."

Today's reply came from A. R. Lofstrand, jr., chairman of the county delegation to the Legislature, who said proposed legislation is "furtherance of the home-rule policy of the council."

He said pending legislation to return supervision of numerous county functions to elected officials was offered to carry out a 1946 campaign pledge. The functions of local government had been "wrongfully usurped" by various independent agencies appointed by the Governor, he added.

The Park Commission is a State agency serving Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties.

The proposed legislation would return to the elected officials of Montgomery County supervision over building inspection, electrical inspection, zoning recommendations, street and highway planning, and other similar functions. It would leave supervision of park acquisition to the commission.

"It has the approval of the County Council," Loftstrand said.

He pointed out that the Planning Commission itself had asked authority in 1947 to establish separate offices in Montgomery and Prince Georges and to publish a separate building code for each of the two counties.

If the pending legislation does not become law, the speaker declared, "Montgomery County would then be under the necessity of establishing two zoning and planning agencies, two building inspection services, two electrical inspection services and duplicate all of the other services now performed by the planning commission within the regional district so that the rest of the county would not be without these services."

The project in question is the Hunting Tower Apartments, planned as elevator-type apartments on the riverfront near the southern end of the city. It is planned to contain 795 family units.

State law forbids increasing the volume of raw sewage dumped into the Potomac River. Alexandria has no sewage treatment facilities.

Man Who Cut Two in Store Sent to Prison

Leroy Payton, 29, no fixed address, was sentenced yesterday to serve from two to six years in prison for stabbing two chain-store employes as he attempted to flee with 15 pounds of stolen butter.

Judge Richmond B. Keech of District Court imposed sentence.

The crime occurred September 18 in a Safeway Store at 2011 S st. nw. Police said that Payton attempted to leave with the butter, valued at $12.45, when the employes stopped him. They were William F. Clodfelter and Calvin H. Wolfe, both of whom were stabbed by the fleeing Payton.

Pervis Cogdell, 27, of 711 Kenilworth ter. ne., received a sentence of one to three years for forging and cashing four Goverment checks totaling $263 last year.

Louis L. Wiliams, 20, of 309 I st. nw., a convicted burglar, was given one to three years for looting an apartment at 4962 Benning rd. se., of more than $275 in clothing.

Charles Burke, 49, of 1205 6½ st. nw., was given 15 to 45 months for robbing a man of a billfold containing $27.

Police Arrest 2 District Men on Assault Charges

Two District men were arrested yesterday after a Landover Hills, Md., housewife swore out assault and peace bond warrants on them following an argument at her home about 4:30 p. m.

The assault warrant, sworn to by Mrs. Levina Schildknecht, of 4102 72d ave., Landover Hills, charges John Peay, 25, 1404 Maryland ave. ne., with striking her and knocking her down during the dispute.

Arthur Brommer, of 1725 Kilbourne pl. nw., is charged in the peace bond warrant with brandishing a pistol at her and threatening her life. Both men were picked up by District police and turned over to Prince Georges County officers.

Brommer was released under $300 bond and Peay under $200. Both are to appear in Hyattsville Police Court on Monday.

They were arrested after Mrs. Schildknecht gave police the license number of their car and a lookout was broadcast.

Holdup Man Waits Upon Store Trade

A brazen holdup man late Thursday night sold beer to customers of the liquor store he was robbing while his confederate was in a rear room of the establishment holding the proprietor up at gunpoint.

A short time after this took place, both bandits sacked the cash register of $140 and fled. They also took with them a pistol they forced the store owner to turn over to them.

Thomas R. Brogan, 63, proprietor of a store at 3302 Branch ave., Silver Hill, Md., told Prince Georges County police he was alone when a youthful bandit entered about 11:15 p. m.

The bandit, he said, waved a pistol at him and pushed him into another room, where he forced Brogan to surrender the pistol.

While this was going on, police related, a pair of customers entered the store. The bandit's accomplice then got out of a car, entered the store, and sold them six cans of beer for 62 cents.

After shutting Brogan into the furnace room, the holdup men piled cases of beer against the door, ransacked the register and fled. Brogan pushed his way out and called police.

During the police investigation, the customers returned, suspicious because they had been sold beer at about half of its regular price, police said.

Two Suspects Held In Four Holdups Here

Two men were in police custody yesterday as suspects following a series of four holdups committed within a span of seven hours.

The first holdup was at 8:15 p. m Thursday in the 400 block of 6th st. ne. Two men and a woman held up Herman J. Zeaman, 71, of 610 E st. nw., and robbed him of $24 and his watch.

There was a lull until 1:15 a. m. when Dwight E. Gallagher, 1204 K st. nw., was robbed of $80 while walking on 13th st. nw., between I and K sts. The bandit fled up an alley.

At 3 a. m., Pvts. Merl E. Swope and Sam Weiner of the Second Precinct saw three men run from the Washington Doughnut Shop, 1125 7th st. nw., with the manager, Isadore Krissillas, in pursuit.

After a chase of two blocks, the policemen caught L. J. Jackson, 22, of 623 M st. nw., on a vacant lot. The other two men escaped, but one of them was later apprehended.

Police charged Jackson with robbery. They said his companion who was captured later had admitted the earlier holdup of the grocery store at 501 A st. ne., but had not yet been charged.

In the doughnut shop holdup Krissillas told police the trio took $5.67 from his cash register and took $2 from M. A. Byrd, 40, of 2560 S. Nash st., Arlington, a cab driver who was in the shop.

Policeman Fined $100 by Trial Board

Pvt. George W. Sebastian, 37, of the Fourteenth Precinct, who pleaded guilty to charges that he left his post and failed to report that he was off duty, yesterday was fined a total of $100 by the Police Trial Board.

Sebastian admitted that on January 19, the night of the Inaugural Gala, he left the parking lot behind the National Guard Armory, where he was detailed, to give a lift home to two girls in his own car shortly before the detail was relieved at 1:15 a. m.

"I was just taking a chance on leaving there a few minutes early. It was a large detail and I took a chance on not being missed," he said.

He was fined $25 on this specification of the charge.

His explanation for not reporting off duty was that the other policemen on the detail had already gone when he returned to the lot.

On this specification he was fined $50.

Sebastian also admitted that earlier in the night, around 11:30 p. m., he left his post at 19th and S sts. se. and went into an apartment at 1846 C st. se. for a few minuter.

He said he did not know the occupants of the apartment but had asked to use the bathroom there.

He was fined $25 on this specification.

Sebastian, who lives at 517 Newcomb st. se., has been a member of the police force for 12 years. His present commanding officer, Capt. William Murphy, told the board he has been doing a "good job" both as a foot patrolman and station clerk.

Nonresident Wins Order Keeping Girl In Eliot Junior High Pending Settlement

Judge David A. Pine granted a temporary restraining order to prevent the School Board from expelling Sarah Eisenberg, 14, the daughter of a Prince Georges County grocer, from Eliot Junior High School.

Her father, Isaac Eisenberg, 1701 Kenilworth ave., Kenilworth, Md., had asked for an injunction, charging that his daughter was being ousted for non-payment of tuition fees, which should be taken care of by his payment of taxes on real estate he owns in the District.

Eisenberg said the girl, who is in the ninth grade, attended the

SARAH EISENBERG
Wins Court Order

Kenilworth Elementary School and later the Eliot Junior High School without paying tuition ever since she started in the first grade.

In January of each year, he was tendered a bill for tuition, but the $101-a-year tax that he paid on District real estate was credited against her tuition and he never had to pay this in cash, he said.

This year, when he went to the school board with his tax bill receipts, he was turned down. Last Monday he received a notice that his daughter would not be able to attend the Eliot school after 3 p. m. yesterday unless the tuition was paid, he declared.

Eisenberg's suit stated that in addition to paying taxes on District real estate, he is a member of the District Grocery Stores, which pay $17,000 a year in personal property taxes, and that he has an interest in the Grocers Finance Corp., which pays $11,334 a year in taxes to the District.

The suit asked that the amount paid here be at least in part or entirely credited for the tuition fee, which is $80.16 a semester for junior high school non-resident students.

The temporary restraining order was granted by Judge Pine to allow the girl to remain in school until further court action can settle the matter.

Adelbert W. Heinmiller, head of the school business office, said he would look into the case immediately and turn his finding over to the Corporation Counsel's office. He said he did not know how many students were in the same category as the Eisenberg girl.

Passage of the 1949 Appropriations Act provided no exception for payment of tuition by nonresident students.

Datebook Again Brims With Hellos and Goodbys

By Marie McNair

THE Honduran Ambassador and Senora de Caceres yesterday said goodbye to their friends once more at the cocktail party given by Paul Daniels, Director of the Office of American Republic Affairs of the Department of State, and Mrs. Daniels, at the Carlton.

And at Mrs. George Thorpe's house, guests arrived in droves to greet Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lomen—she's the former Laura Volstead—he was once known as "the reindeer king," and to see again Mrs. Guy Despard Goff, widow of the West Virginia Senator, who's here for the winter season.

There was Mrs. A. S. M. Monroney's tea, too, yesterday, a pleasant little party at her home on Wyoming ave., with some of the congressional ladies, a few of Mrs. Monroney's personal friends, asked to meet Mrs. Robert S. Kerr, wife of the new Senator from Oklahoma.

First stop: The Monroney's house, to find that Mrs. Monroney and Mrs. Kerr had already welcomed Mrs. Clinton Anderson, Mrs. John Steelman, Mrs. McClellan and a few others.

To meet the charming Mrs. Kerr, who's tall—nearly 6 feet—and blonde, with an infectious smile. Oklahoma's first lady until her husband won a Senate seat, Mrs. Kerr is already at home in the Nation's Capital, says she "pulls up and transplants" easily.

Up the street a few blocks to Mrs. Thorpe's party, there to see old Washington almost en masse.

Mrs. Thorpe, in a turquoise blue gown dotted with rhinestones, had no need to introduce her guests of honor to anyone. They've known one another for years.

It was good to have a word with Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, widow of the Chief Justice, to hear that she's keeping on with her painting for which she has a great gift.

Mme. Wellington Koo, the Chinese Ambassador's wife, was always the center of a group, so too was handsome Mrs. Harold Burton giving away her secret on how she has kept her straight back.

Around the Tea Table

Mrs. Buchanan Merryman was sampling the tiny rolled and toasted mushroom sandwiches; Mrs. John Allan Dougherty took her turn pouring tea, and Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner, elegant in black, with swooping paradise on her hat, declared she was making her debut yesterday after an illness of a number of weeks.

Senator and Mrs. George Malone came in, and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould, Representative Karl Stefan, Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman.

Mrs. Julien Gillespie, Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Evans and Mrs. William S. Culbertson, were there, and talking National Symphony fund-raising plans, like mad were Mrs. Philip Strong attending with Colonel Strong, Miss Bertha Joseph and Fay Lewishon who came with Mrs. Martin Vogel.

Then there were Mary and Elizabeth Howry, Mrs. Henry Parsons Erwin, Mme. Rybar, Mrs. Parker West, Mrs. Walter Distler, Miss Nan Garcia, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cato Glover, Mrs. Emerson Howe, and Mrs. Wilbur Carr.

Caceres Are Bearing Up Well

The Honduran Ambassador and Senora de Caceres are bearing up well under an avalanche of farewell parties which are being crowded into the next six days before they sail from Baltimore on the 24th. Yesterday's party was mostly for the Ambassador's colleagues among the Latin-American members of the Diplomatic Corps and those department heads of the State Department with whom he has been friends during his 16 years in Washington. Mrs. Daniels couldn't have looked prettier than she did yesterday in a soft gray crepe gown with graceful long skirt and hip length peplum and purple orchids perched on her shoulder. Senora de Caceres had chosen black, glistening with casually sewn sequins, and she too, wore orchids pinned to the bodice of her gown.

The long buffet table down the center of the Carlton room shared equal attention with the bar in the corner of the room, for there was seafood Newburgh, and creamed chicken, hundreds of canapes and a delicious coffee ice cream for dessert for those guests who stayed for supper—and most of them did!

Secretary Acheson There

DEAN ACHESON, Secretary of State, was there, and a South American entente nibbling at the table including the Chilean Ambassador, Felix Nieto del Rio, the Argentine Ambassador, dapper Jeronimo Remorino, and the Bolivian Ambassador, Richard Martinez Vargas.

The dean of the Diplomatic Corps, the Norwegian Ambassador and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, and Mrs. Claude Pepper, were listening with interest and amusement to Senator Alexander Wiley's account of his audience with the Norwegian King.

Then . . . I saw the El Salvador Ambassador and Senora de Castro; Stanley Woodward, Chief of Protocol, and Ray Muir, Assistant Chief, with Mrs. Muir; Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, the Ecuador Ambassador and Senora de Dillon, the Cuban Minister, Dr. Jose Baron, and Senora de Baron and Senator Theodore Francis Greene.

I met for the first time Cesar Caceres, young son of the guests of honor, who's to stay in Washington to start his medical training at Georgetown University next fall, and is pretty pleased that he's been able to get an apartment in Buckingham. Dr. and Mrs. William F. O'Donnell were there and Allan Dawson of the State Department and Raoul de Medina of the Pan American Union.

Yesterday Senora de Caceres was guest of honor at Mrs. James Souby's luncheon, others in the group being Senora de Restrepo, Senora de Thomen, Senora de Esquivel, Senora de Gonzales Arevalo, Senora de Castro, Senora de Copello, Mme. Rybar, Mme. Chautemps, Mrs. Eldon P. King, Mrs. Brison Norris, Mrs. Robert E. Lee 3d, Mrs. Arthur Vennell, Mrs. Burks Summers, Mrs. Henry Albers and Mrs. E. G. Brite. Mrs. John H. Berry, mother of the hostess, assisted.

Hoagy Carmichael to Play at Ball

Hoosiers Will Dance to 'Star Dust'

By Nicha Soure

A COUPLE of Washington Hoosiers, Mr. and Mrs. William Shattuck, were the persons responsible for Mr. and Mrs. Hoagy Carmichael's flying visit from Hollywood to Washington to attend the Indiana State Society ball tonight in the Terrace ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel.

And at 10:30 p. m. all eyes will be on Hoagy as he takes over the program by singing and playing his own classic, "Star Dust," and others, including "Lazy Bones" and "Old Buttermilk Sky."

The dance is for the benefit of the twenty-fifth regional art salon to be held in the National Art Gallery in April. The art salon is an exhibit of water colors, oils and sculpture.

The Assistant Attorney General of the Criminal Division and Mrs. Alex M. Campbell will have among their 11 guests for a dinner preceding the dance Attorney General and Mrs. Tom Clark and Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Peyton Ford.

THAT way-down-South State, Mississippi, is having its dance tonight in the Shoreham Hotel at 9:30 o'clock. Miss Nell Eastland, daughter of Senator and Mrs. James Oliver Eastland, who has been chosen as Cherry Blossom princess for the Washington spring festival, will be on hand to receive her royal credentials.

RESIDENTS of the Old Dominion State will be transported through time at the George Washington Birthday and Colonial Ball at the Carlton Hotel on February 21.

Mrs. Richard A. Allen, who has portrayed Martha Washington at all of the George Washington balls of the society for the past quarter of a century, will again be gowned as the first First Lady. William O. Dawson will be George.

With an eye to historical authenticity, Mrs. Allen informed Mr. Dawson that she would help him pick out his costume. Mrs. Allen, who has worn out three Martha Washington costumes and is now on the fourth, was displeased with the wig of a past George made in a pigtail instead of the two curls at the sides.

Besides the two important historical characters, there will be 12 members of the Concert Dance Club of the Mary Washington College of the University of Virginia who will perform the minuet and varsovienne in costume during intermission.

An early American portrait of George Washington by an unknown artist has been loaned to the society by Comptroller of the Currency and Mrs. Preston Delano to be exhibited during the evening.

THE feminine half of the Oklahoma Congressional Club will be guests of honor at the Oklahoma State Society tea Sunday evening at the Women's City Club, 1733 I st. nw.

Among the honored guests will be Mrs. Elmer Thomas, Mrs. Robert S. Kerr, Mrs. A. S. (Mike) Monroney, Mrs. Victor Wickersham, Mrs. Carl Albert, Mrs. William Stigler, Mrs. Tom Steed, Mrs. George H. Wilson, Mrs. Toby Morris and Mrs. Dixie Gilmer.

Names of candidates for a princess to be in the queen's court in the Cherry Blossom Festival will be sumbitted at the tea. Mrs. Walter H. Maloney will sing several songs during the afternoon.

Mrs. Woodrow W. Grim is chairman for the tea and will be assisted by Mrs. Chleo Nichols Spencer, Mrs. Roy St. Lewis, Mrs. Harrington Wimberly and Mrs. Barce Stonebraker.

Hostesses for the tea will be Mrs. Hurschel Underhill, Miss Marie Stewart, Mrs. William H. Payne, Miss Malvina Stephenson, Miss Maurine Howard, Mrs. Jerry Griffin and Mrs. Lucy Walters.

Presiding at the tea table will be Mrs. Waldo Nichols, Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith, sr.; Mrs. Hazel Comstock, Mrs. John V. Moore, Mrs. Hugh Prucha, Mrs. Wesley Crozier, Mrs. Minnie Poole, Miss Edna Sloan, Mrs. Don McBride, Mrs. Josh Lee, Mrs. William H. McMaine and Mrs. Suzanne Thomas.

THE Texas Society, which decorated its own float in the inaugural parade, will have exhibits and decorations from the float around the West Ballroom at the dance on February 26, lending a "homey" touch to the get-together.

The entire Texas Congressional delegation will be on hand at the reception preceding the dance. Holding the limelight a wee bit longer will be the new Congressmen, Representatives Homer Thornberry and Lloyd M. Bentsen, jr., and Senator Lyndon B. Johnson and their wives.

Texas' gift to the Cherry Blossom Festival, Miss Marian Sue Wilson, will be presented to the Texans at the dance by Attorney General Tom Clark. Miss Wilson is the daughter of Representative and Mrs. J. Frank Wilson.

THE Minnesota crowd, not content with resting on its laurels of a really bang-up party in the form of the Paul Bunyan Festival, has slated another party on Monday, February 21.

One of the guests of honor will be Miss America, who in private life is Miss Beatrice Shopp of Hopkins, Minn.

The Terrace Room of the Shoreham Hotel will be the scene of the Minnesota's annual congressional reception honoring the State's Congressmen and their wives. Gen. and Mrs. Carl R. Gray, jr., will be the official hosts at the party and Senator Edward J. Thye will extend greeting to the members.

THE North Carolina Society will be "at home" in honor of Senator and Mrs. J. M. Broughton at the Woman's National Democratic Club, 1526 New Hampshire ave. nw., on Sunday between 4 and 6 p. m.

DEAR MADAM:

'Taint easy to be a "Femme Fatale" in these days. That we know. But we suggest that you visit Cody's Servicenter. It's the most unusual place in town. They'll lengthen or shorten suits, dresses or coats, replace zippers, lengthen, widen, shorten or dye your shoes. They'll repair your handbags, gloves and umbrellas. In fact, they'll fix anything but a busted romance. Cody's Servicenter, 712 12th Street, N.W. STerling 7098. Mail orders accepted.

Ask Anne

Could you refer me to a good book on making canapes, hors d'oeuvres and little party sandwiches? I am planning a party and would like to serve these with cocktails. I. K.

"Hors D'oeuvre and Canapes," by James Beard (M. Barrows & Co.), is a book of this type. Besides numerous canape ideas, it has suggestions for giving a cocktail party. It can be purchased or ordered at most book stores.

I have a red leather bag of excellent quality which, however, has become soiled through constant use. Although it is not definitely stained, still I feel that a good cleaning would improve its looks immeasurably as it is darkened in places by daily use. Can you suggest the best way to restore it to its original appearance? M. McF.

Clean the purse by going over it with saddle soap and follow the cleaning with a good neutral cream for conditioning. Or, if you would like to enrich the color, use an oxblood leather dressing for the conditioning. All of these materials are sold where shoes or leather supplies are sold. Follow the directions which come with the products you buy.

Could you tell me the best way to clean pink satin bedroom slippers? A. G.

You might improve the appearance of the slippers somewhat by rubbing a good dry cleaning powder into them, letting it stand and then brushing it away when dry. Or, mix just enough carbon tetrachloride into cornstarch to dampen it and rub this into the fabric. If you see some improvement, the treatment may be repeated. If the slippers are very soiled, you cannot hope to restore them completely to newlike condition.

To M. H.: A shop which is interested in the items you wish to sell can be reached by calling Alexandria 0649.

We have a collection of Time magazines, complete, I believe since late 1941. (There possibly are one or two missing numbers.) Now we realize that continuing the collection takes more space than we have available and we are wondering whether the file has any value—other than as scrap, of course. If so, what sort of person or group might be interested and what would be the best way to contact them? E. A. S.

If you wish to sell the collection, I suggest you advertise it in The Washington Post. If you wish to give it away, the library at the Salvation Army Men's Social Service Center would be glad to have them. They will pick them up if you will call them at District 8023.

Alcala Zamora, Ex-President Of Spain, Dies

Buenos Aires, Feb. 18 (AP).—Niceto Alcala Zamora, 71, exiled father of Spain's second Republic, was found dead in bed here today. He left a letter to the Spanish people calling for unity.

The political responsibilities tribunal of Generalissimo Franco's government sentenced him in 1941 to 15 years in exile, loss of Spanish citizenship and confiscation of his property, valued at $4,500,000. Alcala Zamora had already fled the country.

Alcala Zamora, a middle-of-the-roader and a devout Catholic, served as provisional president of the regime which overthrew King Alfonso XIII, April 14, 1931. He was elected president of the second Republic (the first lasted from 1873 to 1875) for a six-year term December 19, 1931. He helped get the King and his family out of the country.

The overthrow of the monarchy came not long after Alcala Zamora served a jail term following an abortive revolt against Gen. Primo de Rivera's government.

He was ousted, himself, however, before completing his presidential term. A 1936 election gave leftists an absolute majority in the Cortes (parliament) and his former allies combined to vote him out of office. Manuel Azana, who had been his premier, succeeded him as president. The civil war and Franco's rise to power followed.

My Flowers

My flowers do not come from shops . . . Or near my garden wall . . . Because my flowers are the friends . . . Who take the time to call . . . They are the living lilacs and . . . The roses red and white . . . The tulips and forget-me-nots . . . Of every day and night . . . They are the folks who ring my bell . . . Or write me from afar . . . To offer me their services . . . And tell me how they are . . . Who somehow always seem to have . . . A little time to spare . . . To fill my vases with their smiles . . . And let me know they care . . . They are the gentle souls with whom . . . I never want to part . . . Because they are the flowers fair . . . That blossom in my heart.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

"Old Army Game" Must Have Been "Numbers"

My curiosity about Army serial numbers is now satisfied. When I showed up for work the morning after the item appeared, our Washington Post operator reported:

"Captain Knoeller called to say that Gen. John J. Pershing held number 0-1 (with the '0' signifying that he was an officer). Don't go away from your desk, we're getting more calls."

Quick confirmation came from Gregory Stone of 2122 Decatur pl. nw., Col. R. R. Wood, retired, of 2220 20th st. nw., and Bill Plampin of 4108 Tunlaw Terrace nw., who added that the lowest serial number still on the active list is probably Gen. Douglas MacArthur—No. 0-57.

"Right," confirmed Maj. A. E. Roughton, jr., of 408 Quackenbos st. ne. "Lower than General Marshall's?" I wondered. In came the postman, with the answer as supplied by John Slinkman, associate editor of Army Times. John says General Marshall's number is 0-1616; and, of course, General Eisenhower and the other younger men have much higher numbers.

In the same mail was a note from Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, whose 0-3061 started all this.

General Fleming pointed out that there are many active numbers lower than his. For example, Maj. Gen. Glen E. Edgerton (0-2324), Maj. Gen. E. S. Hughes (0-2333), Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d (0-1790) and Maj. Gen. Charles D. Herron (0-777).

Col. A. F. Kingman (0-4749) of 4000 Reno rd. nw. suggested a few more general officers with low serial numbers: Hanson E. Ely (0-80), Edward Burr (0-98), John L. Hines (0-23) and John L. Chamberlain (0-9).

A retired officer, Col. Charles A. Romeyn of 2480 16th st. nw. (0-73) informed me:

"The numbers were assigned according to relative rank, in 1920. General Fleming is pretty well down the list, and I imagine there are a hundred retired officers in Washington with lower numbers. The lowest I know is Brig. Gen. James T. Kerr, whose number is 0-61."

At this point I turned to my personal military expert, Reporter Marshall Andrews, who always seems to know the answers.

He told me that enlisted men started getting serial numbers during the early days of the first war. They were allotted in blocks to departments, then to camps, and then (haphazardly) to individuals.

However, when War Department Circular 138 appeared on May 26, 1921, it was provided that the numbering of officers should be based on relative rank.

At the time, we had no officer with a permanent rank higher than major general. Peyton C. March was chief of staff, and therefore wore four stars, as did Blackjack Pershing, commander of the AEF.

Pershing got 0-1, March 0-6. Between them were Leonard Wood, 0-2; Hunter Liggett, 0-3; John F. Morrison, 0-4, and Charles G. Morton, 0-5. All were major generals.

Reserve officers, incidentally, began with the number 0-100,001. And if anybody can top General Pershing's 0-1, I take a solemn oath I'll never again get involved in an item like this.

P. S.: THE HORSE RAN OUT OF THE MONEY

Bill Bennings' best bet at Hialeah the other day was Dubious. Mrs. Herbert D. May of 4007 Connecticut ave. nw. asks: "Aren't they all?"

VAGRANT THOUGHT

Is Robert Mitchum doing a stretch in the jug for breaking the law, or is he spending a few pleasant weeks making publicity stills?

MISCELLANY

Engineer Commissioner Gen. Gordon R. Young will not be leaving his present post on March 1, as reported by one of our afternoon contemporaries. General Young will be around until the middle of the summer, and then will probably conclude his distinguished career with another tour of foreign duty . . . If the kids at Children's Hospital wonder why they suddenly got some flowers from Marcia Litman of 124 Wayne pl. se., here's the story: Marcia ordered some flowers from the My Florist shop, and paid for them. When delivery couldn't be completed she got a credit slip—and used it by sending these floral greetings to the shutins at the hospital . . . W. C. Moore of 646 F st. sw., the rhyming operator on the Mount Pleasant line, is back at work again after an illness at Sibley Memorial Hospital . . . Lillian O'Neill of 8501 Dixon ave., Silver Spring, Md., thinks our news story about the Red Cross shouldn't have called them "Bray Ladies" . . . C. W. Per-Lee of 1015 N. Edgewater st., Arlington, Va., is amazed to learn from one of our Virginia contemporaries that Vice President Barkley told a group of Senate page boys: "I know you're new around here—I always keep an eye on the new page boys and say 'hell' to them." Well, I guess if they're going to work on Capitol Hill, they might as well get used to it.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Seven puppies, 7 weeks old; mama was German police." (Warfield 0747, noon to 6 p. m., today only).

"Four 8-weeks-old pups; fat, full of fun, and looking for a boy or girl who will give them a nice home." (Hillside 3474).

LAWBREAKING COPS

The other day I ran an item about policemen who don't obey traffic regulations.

Immediately afterward local cops got official warning that they were expected to obey the rules just like everybody else—except when on emergency calls.

Then Eric Reisfeld of 9905 Lorain ave., Silver Spring, Md., wrote:

"It is with disgust that ordinary mortals, not endowed with police badges, watch these policemen making illegal turns, parking where they please, and generally disregarding the laws. Why not publish lists of such violations and identify the culprits?"

As if in answer, there came a letter from a motorcycle patrolman who asked that he remain anonymous. He said:

"Anybody who sees a police car violating our parking regulations is at liberty to take down the tag number and location of the car and forward same to headquarters.

"I can assure you that the offenders will be very sorry (and more careful in the future) unless the offense was justified by an emergency call."

That's as it should be, and a very constructive attitude on the part of police officials.

But it would certainly be a lot better to have our policemen obey their own laws voluntarily, rather than build up a community of citizen snoopers to tattle on them.

OVERHEARD

Police Dispatcher: "Scout So-and so, a lady in the 600 block of Kentucky ave. se. reports a skunk in her yard. She'll meet you in her yard and point out the skunk to you, provided that you don't meet the skunk first."

GOODIE!

And it serves them right.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK—Henri Bernstein, the French playwright-producer-director, just opened his new play in Paris, with Jean Gabin as his star. Bernstein admits that he's in his late 60s, but fancies himself the romantic equal of any of the matinee idols who've worked for him—Gabin, Jean Pierre Aumont, Claude Dauphin and Charles Boyer. Boyer was his first star, and once, when a lady he longed for expressed admiration for the young actor, Bernstein took protective measures. He told Boyer, "I want you to grow a beard for this role." For the next few rehearsal weeks Boyer wore a scraggly, itchy beard. On opening day, when the romance was over and Bernstein no longer worried about this competition, he told Boyer: "Shave the beard. It's really unnecessary to the plot and characterization."

One of America's leading associations of artists for a long time has wanted to elect Yasuo Kuniyoshe to membership. But because the painter was born in Japan, and because the charter limits membership to native-born or naturalized Americans, this has been impossible . . . Noncitizen Kuniyoshe therefore will be elected an honorary associate.

Leon Henderson, the economist who is America's most furious rumba dancer, sent his suit to be pressed, and it was returned with a crease in the sleeve. When he arrived at the Stork Club a fashion-conscious friend reminded him, "The well-groomed man never has his tailor press a crease in the sleeve" . . . Henderson, whose dancing always brings perspiration and complaints from the chefs who work under the trembling dance floor, glanced at the crease and shrugged, "One rumba and it's out."

Jean Cocteau, the French writer-artist, who recently visited N. Y., told a group of colleagues in Paris that American civilization is finished. "This was made apparent to me," said Cocteau, "when I went to a New York bistro and saw (1) a man eating alone, (2) looking haggard, (3) and watching a television show while he ate. This means Americans (1) have become unattractive and antisocial, (2) they're worried about it and (3) they seek distraction, instead of thinking, when they're alone."

William Saroyan, whose newest collection is called "The Saroyan Special," tells of his first visit to Paris when he tried to cash one of his Express checks and found the proceedings so involved that he thought he was being arrested in the Stavisky scandal. As identification, he showed his passport, and tried to look like his passport photo. In describing how he looked on his passport, Saroyan said: "Angry at capital."

Doing Europe by Freight Train

By Drew Pearson

Aboard the French Gratitude Train.—Here I am riding on freight trains again. Of course, these French freight cars are getting super-de luxe treatment, thanks to the courtesy and generosity of the American railroads. But anyway, riding with them brings back memories of the days when I rode in similar boxcars in the Balkans after World War I.

PEARSON

M. Charles d'Hagues, the French railway mechanic who is traveling with the Gratitude Train, describes these boxcars as "tres fatigue." Perhaps because they are "very tired," have been everywhere, seen everything, a world of sentiment of memories is tied up in them. These are the same type cars that France sent down to aid her ally, Serbia, during and after the first war, and they are the same cars that carried Friendship Train food through France and Italy just a little over a year ago.

For many months after World War I they were the only thing in which you could travel. And when it came to choosing between "forty men and eight horses," I personally preferred riding with the eight horses.

Reason was that the horses kept the car warm. And you have no idea how cold those cars could get on winter nights. If, however, you picked out a train carrying cavalry, and slipped into a car with eight horses, you were reasonably sure of spending a warm night. The horses were always tied, their heads facing the door, so you could sleep on the hay in front of them with no danger from their heels.

Police Guard Boxcars

Today the American railroads are guarding these French boxcars with special police night and day, as if they were museum pieces—which, in effect, they are. But in the Balkans, there was only one way to keep your boxcar from being rifled—sleep in it yourself.

And, as part of my job was to transport relief supplies from Belgrade south to the Yugoslav-Albanian border, boxcars were a sort of second home to me.

Sometimes we borrowed Yugoslav gendarmes from the government to guard supplies, but usually that meant about 10 per cent of your flour and sugar was sold along the way—by the gendarme.

Or sometimes when you didn't have supplies to guard you rode in the caboose—also unheated, except for a Standard Oil can, with holes punched in the sides and a couple of chunks of soft coal burning inside.

'American Ladies'

Then there were those postwar locomotives. Sometimes I rode in them, because they were warm. Usually, they barely crept along and sometimes they didn't go at all. Many of them were left behind by the American Army and had whistles reminiscent of the locomotives of our Western States. You could always recognize them by their whistle, and the Serbs, hearing them, would call them "Amerikana," meaning "American Lady."

One Amerikana behind which I rode got stalled on a cold January night in the mountain pass south of Nish, and I still recall as if it were yesterday lining up a dozen men between the locomotive and a creek to pass water in Standard Oil tins up to the boiler. The Serbs had expected the "American Lady" to make steam with her boiler dry!

Railroads Better Now

The railroads of Europe have improved a lot since then. Even the French and Italian roads, though suffering terrific punishment during the war, are now pretty well back on their feet. You still have to take along steamer rugs, heavy socks and long underwear to stay warm, and traveling through most of Europe in wintertime is something you don't do just for the fun of it.

All of which is by way of contrast with the way American railroads are run today, as evidenced by the operation of the Gratitude Train. American railroads are carrying these 49 boxcars 70,700 miles, or the equivalent of three times around the world. To plan this schedule traffic managers for about 17 roads sat down in Washington well before the French ship docked and figured out, almost to the last hour and minute, when each car would arrive at its destination, and how approximately eight sections of the train would fan out through the United States.

When the steamship Magellan tied up at the Erie Railroad docks in Weehauken, 49 flatcars were set and waiting on the pier. And within 30 minutes after the ship was secured, the first French car was hoisted by crane onto the waiting flatcar.

The last of the French cars are being delivered next week—a terrific job, executed without a slip-up.
